1938 Victor Killed In Auto Classic As Wilbur Shaw Wins

Jim Snyder, Ex-Oglethorpe Student, 2d; Two Other Drivers and Two Women Injured in Race.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—(AP)—Leaving death, wreckage and blasted hopes behind in his perilous ride, Wilbur Shaw, veteran Indianapolis driver, won the 500-mile automobile race over the Indianapolis motor speedway today in a dramatic finish.

Jimmy Snyder, one time Chicago milkman and former Oglethorpe University student, finished second.

Floyd Roberts, 39-year-old driver from Van Nuys, Cal., lost his life as Shaw, winner of the 1937 race, rode to triumph.

A few minutes before the finish, Roberts, critically injured in a smash-up of three cars, died of brain concussion in a hospital. Two other drivers, Chet Miller, of Detroit, and Bob Swanson, of Los Angeles, were injured, but not seriously. Two women spectators also were hurt.

Shaw, thrilling a crowd of 145,000, won through the misfortune of Flying Louis Meyer, of Huntington Park, Cal., only three-time winner of the classic. Within the last 50 miles of victory, Meyer went into two dangerous spins. He lost the lead because of the first one when he blew a front tire. He was desperately attempting to regain it when he spun around the second time. In disgust, he pushed the car off the track and quit with only seven more miles to go.

The victorious Shaw covered the 500 miles, 200 times around the 2½-mile brick and asphalt track, in 4:20:47.41 to average 115.035 miles an hour. This was below the record-breaking average of 117.2 miles an hour made by Roberts in triumphing a year ago, because the race was slowed down for 31½ minutes with the drivers going at a comparatively snail's pace while the wreckage of three cars was cleared from the track.

Snyder Second.
Shaw finished a minute and 58 precious seconds ahead of Jimmy Snyder, who covered the distance in 4:22:35.60 to average 114.24 miles an hour. Cliff Bergere, of Hollywood, Cal., was third and Ted Horn, of Los Angeles, fourth.

Babe Stapp, of Los Angeles, was fifth; George Barringer, of Houston, Texas, sixth, and Joel Thorne, of New Rochelle, N. Y., heir to railroad millions, driving one of four cars entered by him, was seventh. Mauri Rose, Columbus, Ohio, veteran, driving a car entered by the victorious Shaw, was eighth, with Frank Wearne, of Pasadena, Cal., ninth, and Billy Devore, of St. John, Kan., tenth.

Twelve of the original starting field of 33 were running at the finish. Eighteen were stranded because of mechanical trouble and three were wrecked.

Shaw's margin of victory over Snyder was about 2 1-2 miles.

The death of the popular Roberts marred the day. Tearing around the southeast turn, he plowed into a wobbling car, driving.

Averaging 115.035 miles an hour, Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis veteran, won the annual 500-mile Indianapolis auto classic yesterday.

Jimmy Snyder, of Chicago, former Oglethorpe University student, finished second in the grueling Indianapolis race in which 33 cars started.

COURT REFUSES TO ENJOIN HUIET

Refers Row With James to Personnel Board of Unemployment Division

Fulton county superior court late yesterday referred to the personnel board of the unemployment division of the Georgia Department of Labor the controversy between Lem P. James, ousted director of the unemployment division, and Ben T. Huie, labor commissioner.

Judge Virlyn B. Moore refused to issue an order in the effort of James to enjoin Huie from ejecting James from his office and from interfering with the performance of James' duties as director, but told Huie that unless charges are filed against James within 20 days, he will grant the injunction.

Must Demand Trial.
Likewise, Judge Moore informed James that if he failed to demand a trial before the advisory board within five days after the charges of incompetence are made against him, he will dismiss the injunction suit.

In effect, the position of the court is that it retains jurisdiction of the case until such time as action is initiated by Huie or a trial demand is filed by James.

Advisory Board Listed.
Members of the advisory board are Dr. T. Jack Lance, chairman; George Goode and Harry Nottingham, whom Huie has attempted to replace with another group.

Judge Moore expressed the opinion that James is under the merit system and Governor Rivers was without authority to decide whether James should be discharged. He held that it is a matter for the board to determine, and

BELLE ISLE SAYS MAYOR FAVORING TROLLEYS, BUSES

Taxi Owner in Turn Is Charged by Arkwright of Trying To Set Up
Jitney Bus Business Here

A. L. Belle Isle, president of the Black and White Cab Company, issued a statement last night declaring that Mayor Hartsfield is favoring the Georgia Power Company to the detriment of the taxicab company in its operation of street cars and buses by refusing to come to the aid of traction service passengers who are "forced to hang on straps."

The cab company president at the same time announced he will place 150 cabs on the streets this morning, operating on the ten-cent rate within four miles of Five Points.

Yesterday Mayor Hartsfield instructed Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby to order all ten-cent cabs operated by Economy Cab Company and Harlem Cab Company off the streets because those companies did not have franchises and had no definite markings that they were operated by Belle Isle's company. Both are subsidiaries of Black and White Cab Company.

Paints Sign on Cabs.
As soon as Belle Isle learned of the mayor's action concerning Economy and Harlem cabs, he ordered the cabs into the shop and painted "owned and operated by the Black and White Cab Company" on their sides. All Economy cabs had been painted last night and were back on the streets and the Harlem cabs were being equipped with similar signs.

Here is Belle Isle's statement relative to Mayor Hartsfield:

I cannot understand the mayor's attitude. He insisted that the public convenience required more cabs. In the past few days, our company has placed 30 new cars in service and has made arrangements for additional equipment. Yet the mayor has seen fit to order these cabs off the streets.

The mayor insisted that rates were too high, and demanded that they be reduced. We reduced the rates to ten cents in an effort to give the strap-hangers of the street cars and buses in the city of Atlanta a comfortable seat in a new taxicab for a dime.

The mayor has demonstrated intense interest in taxicab riders, but has failed to demonstrate any concern whatsoever in the convenience of the school children.

THREE-WAY SPLIT OF FUND PROVIDED IN SALES TAX BILL

Equal Share of Revenues
Would Go to Schools,
Welfare Department,
County Governments.

By L. A. FARRELL.
The Head sales tax bill, which 120 members of the house of representatives will be asked to sign at Brunswick this week end, provides for an even three-way split of the funds accruing from it, one-third to the common schools, another third to the public welfare department and the remainder to the county governments, it was learned yesterday.

Although Governor Rivers has given no indorsement of the bill, other Rivers leaders have pledged their support to it and it has taken on a strong administration flavor.

The Governor conferred here yesterday with Representative Henderson Lanham, of Floyd county, chairman of the house ways and means committee; Representative Frank Gross, of Stephens county, house floor leader, and Representative Alton Harvey, of Upson county, all of whom are expected to be the first to sign Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head's bill and then to seek to obtain 117 additional signers at Brunswick. Members of the house and senate are to gather at Brunswick Friday for a week end as the guests of the Glynn County Commission and the Brunswick Board of Trade.

It is generally understood that if between 110 and 120 house members affix their signatures to the bill, assuring it their support and their votes, Governor Rivers will call the extra session of the legislature for about July 15. If not enough members sign the bill to insure its passage the call will be delayed.

Meanwhile, Speaker Roy V. Harris, of the house, who has been silent since the close of the regular session, in a speech at Savannah yesterday told the city's Rotary Club that he felt the state either should turn the school problem and the public welfare program over to the counties for financing or enact a tax measure to raise funds to carry on the state program.

"There is no escape from additional taxes in Georgia," Speaker Harris said. "If the state refuses to levy additional taxes, the counties and the school districts will be forced to levy additional taxes. The only question is whether the additional taxes must be levied by

$1.70-a-Pound Coffee: Nazis Ration Foodstuffs as in War

Franco Says His Thanks With Oranges, Which Alone
Seem Plentiful on Markets Where Purchase of Even 5 Eggs Is Considered Quite a Feat.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER.
BERLIN, May 30.—(AP)—Oranges in seemingly plentiful quantities brightened Berlin tables tonight after many months of inability to get more than one or two, if any, because of the Nazi government's food conservation policy.

The appearance of the big boxes of the Spanish fruit in stores eased a burden for housewives and prompted many questions as to why oranges suddenly became plentiful. The customary answer given in streets was that Spanish Nationalist leader General Francisco Franco was paying off part of his "war debt" to Germany in that way.

Otherwise, German supplies of food and raw materials are practically on a wartime footing. Food hoarding has been undertaken on a gigantic scale by the German state. Canneries, day in and day out, are putting up meats, vegetables and fruits as reserves against the rainy day that will come should the country be involved in a war.

Besides food, benzine, copper, nickel, textiles and dozens of other commodities essential for the conduct of war are being stored. The food shortage experienced by the average citizen does not mean, however, that the country as such is so badly off. It reflects the scale on which the state is accumulating stocks for the army to live on.

About the first question any American resident in Germany hears from an American visitor is: "Is there really a food shortage here? I seem to be able to get all the butter and eggs I want, and there is some fruit."

This is part of an effort to make foreign travelers feel that food is plentiful. They do not usually notice that food is expensive, for they pay only about half of what the native or the foreign residents pay. An American resident in Ger-

CATHOLIC PRIMATE OUSTED BY NAZIS

Palace Occupied by Black
Shirts After Fuehrer
Ignores Direct Appeal.

SALZBURG, Germany, May 30.—(AP)—The palace of Archbishop Sigmund Waitz of Salzburg, the Catholic primate of Germany, was in possession of the Nazi black-shirted elite guard tonight after an appeal directly to Chancellor Hitler had gone unheeded.

The Archbishop asked the Fuehrer to rescind the seizure order, which deprived him of the use of his residence. Authorities seized the building yesterday while the Archbishop was away. All the furnishings were removed and stored.

Is Property of State.

The primate, finding himself dispossessed, took temporary residence in a seminary. What steps he planned next were not disclosed.

Archbishop Waitz was notified by authorities a month ago that he would have to leave the palace, which is state property, on the contention the S. S. troops needed the building.

Cites Promise of 1805.

At that time the Archbishop wrote to Hitler asking him to countermand the order because, he said, Emperor Francis II, of Austria, had guaranteed the church the privilege of using the palace and certain other properties in 1805.

This action followed the secularization of 1802, by which all property belonging to the Archbishop of Salzburg became state property.

Twins' Birth, House Afire

Create Twin Problems

OMAHA, Neb., May 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Ed C. Pesen hurried to their son's home in answer to a summons for aid in taking their daughter-in-law to a maternity hospital. Just as they arrived, a phone call informed them their house, struck by lightning, was on fire. They proceeded to the hospital where Mrs. Robert F. Epsen gave birth to twins. Then a police escort cleared the route as they sped to their burning home.

U. S. Is 3d-Term Conscious, Frank Murphy Says Here

Attorney General Declares He Will Look Into Proposal for Additional Judgeship; Flies to Atlanta With J. Edgar Hoover.

By JACK SPALDING.

Energetically, as is his way, Attorney General Frank Murphy in a very few minutes last night cast handfuls of pebbles into two distinct political pools—sufficient to cause noticeable ripples both in national and state waters—and found time left over to launch a small craft upon sociological seas.

Arriving by plane, with J. Edgar Hoover and other Justice Department notables, upon a nearly completed transcontinental tour of federal law enforcement agencies and facilities, the dynamic former Governor of Michigan and former governor general of the Philippines, accomplished these things in a brief press conference:

1. Breathed further life into the possibility that President Roosevelt will seek a new term.
2. Created some additional potential hope that Georgia will receive the long-sought additional federal judgeship.

3. Defended the theory of paroles, but condemned maladministration of the parole system.

While he was careful literally to make no comment on the question of a third term for the President, the attorney general declared that during his tour it had become "obvious that Roosevelt's strength is enormous and that people are

General Franco Calls Upon Spain To Become a 'Fortress of Peace'

MADRID, May 30.—(AP)—General Francisco Franco expressed the desire before thousands of his Nationalist followers today that Spain "be strong so she will be able to assure her peace."
"I want Spain to become a fortress, but I do not want her to become a fortress to plunge herself into any adventures," he asserted during the war.
"I want her (Spain) to become a fortress for peace. War goes far and involves the weaker countries; war respects the strong, and I want Spain to be strong so she will be able to assure her peace."
General Franco declared: "Those who think that armaments and heavy forces are sufficient to win a war are mistaken. The next war is going to be more terrible than any imagination could fancy."

6—Arthur Lucas, chairman of the state public welfare board, reiterated charges that Fulton county relief administration costs are "excessive by $60,000 a year" and advocated extending the investigation to persons receiving state relief. He promised co-operation of the state welfare department in any such investigation.

7—Dr. William Huck, director of the county welfare department, appeared before the grand jury under subpoena for 57 minutes. As he entered the room, he said he had investigated 50 of the alleged discrepancies and had "factual explanations" for them.

$500,000 AIRPORT RUNWAY DEPENDS ON AID BY COUNTY

Project Hinges on Fulton Providing $25,000 To Match Contribution of City, Hester Reports.

A $500,000 runway improvement for the Atlanta airport hinges on whether Fulton county provides $25,000 to match a city contribution of a similar amount, Councilman Cecil W. Hester, chairman of the parks and aviation committee, said yesterday after a conference with Mayor Hartfield.

Hester and Hartfield agreed the project is "urgently necessary if Atlanta is to maintain its position as the hub of southern aviation," and pointed out that officials of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, Federal agency regulating aviation, repeatedly have warned Atlanta administration leaders that action is imperative.

Land To Cost $50,000.

The undertaking also can be had at a bargain price, Hester pointed out. It will cost about $50,000 to acquire the land necessary to extend the east and west runway from its present length of 2,600 feet to the 4,600 feet demanded, but to WPA will fall the bulk of the expense, conversion of the tract into a runway at a cost estimated at from $350,000 to $500,000.

"Although Atlanta is in strained financial condition, we will strain a point and provide $25,000 of the amount needed to obtain the neces-

CORONER REPORTS ON MILLER DEATH

Due to Natural Causes, Jury Declares.

A verdict of death from natural causes was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon in connection with finding of the body of Merrill E. Miller, 35, sewing machine salesman, in his apartment at 591 Ponce de Leon avenue.

Miller had been in ill health for the past two years. A sister, Mrs. Howard Pickett, of 317 Hayden street, N. W., discovered her brother in his bedroom yesterday morning, according to police.

Besides his sister, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Miller, and two other sisters, Mrs. T. D. Vinson and Mrs. T. C. Coursey. Final rites will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Spring Hill. Dr. Louie D. Newton will officiate. Burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery.

City's Position Threatened.

"We think the airport is a community enterprise in which the city and county are equally interested. Things are approaching a crisis rapidly and if something is not done to equip the Atlanta port to handle the large planes now being placed in operation, Atlanta's position as the center of aviation for the south will be threatened seriously."

"I believe if the county will help us, we can get this much needed improvement which will assure Atlanta's future place in aviation activities," Hester said.

"It would be a shame on the city and county if we jeopardized our position through failure to comply with CAA demands. We must do so some way."

DEADLINE NOTICES SENT SCHOOL HEADS

Officials Must Submit Amounts State Owes Teachers by Monday.

County school superintendents have until Monday to submit requisitions for amounts the state owes its 21,000 public school teachers for the now expiring terms.

Johns I. Allman, director of school administration in the Department of Education, sent the "deadline" notices to local officials yesterday. The requisitions will show how much of the seven-month state-supported term the teachers served for which they were not paid.

Total amount owed teachers for this term by the state has been estimated at $5,200,000 based on the failure to meet three and one-half months' allotments to local systems. In addition, the state owes local systems $160,000 for one and one-half months' administration.

In Columbus, teachers were assured their June 1 checks when the city commission authorized borrowing $25,000 for schools and other operating expenses. Education board members there discussed, did not act on, the question of raising $90,000 to pay teachers during vacation months.

SHOWBOAT OWNER DIES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., May 30.—(P)—Daniel Otto Hiner, 57, owner of the showboat Cotton Blossom, made famous in the novel "Showboat," by Edna Ferber, died at his home here today. He had been a resident of this city for five years.

WELLS IS ELECTED CIVITAN CLUB HEAD

Bruce Moran Named First Vice President; Russell A. Baker, Treasurer.

Jere A. Wells, superintendent of Fulton county schools, was elected president of the Civitan Club yesterday to succeed Oby T. Brewer, whose term expired.

Named to serve with him were Bruce Moran, first vice president; Russell A. Baker, treasurer; Leslie Hubbard, secretary; Carl L. Plunkett, sergeant at arms, and Commander E. Paddock, assistant sergeant at arms.

Directors elected to fill the places of John L. Conner, Hamilton Douglas and W. H. Wynne Jr., who have served out their three-year terms, were W. J. Carter Jr., Herbert A. Smeeton and Charles N. Walker. Past President Brewer joined past Presidents Julian Boehm, H. Z. Hopkins, W. L. Quillian, Edgar Watkins, Lewis D. Sharp, Leroy F. Wynne, John M. Slaton and James N. Keelin Jr. on the directing board. Directors held over were Russell Bellman, A. O. Mitchell, John Paschall, John E. O'Keefe, Josiah T. Rose and Charles M. Watt.

Officers who were elected for a year were Dean Raimundo de Ovies, chaplain; Bruce Moran, editor of Civographs, and Mrs. Hubert W. Anderson, executive secretary.

At the conclusion of the meeting, retiring President Brewer was presented with a silver tea service in recognition of his work for the club.

MRS. KIDD KIDDED PAST ENDURANCE, THAT'S NO KIDDING!

Exasperation was in the voice of Mrs. L. E. Kidd, of 212 Luckie street, N. W., when she called at police headquarters yesterday.

About 2 o'clock Tuesday morning she was awakened by a ring at the front door. It was a telephone messenger boy. Mrs. Kidd hadn't called a messenger.

A short time later a taxicab arrived at the house. Mrs. Kidd explained to the driver that she hadn't sent for a taxi.

A little later, another messenger boy, from a rival company, arrived. Mrs. Kidd hadn't sent for this messenger, either.

An hour slipped by—and an ambulance arrived from an undertaking establishment. The driver said he had come for the "body of her daughter." Mrs. Kidd told the gentleman—quite pointedly—that her daughter, Mrs. Voncille Williams, was alive and well, thank you.

Passed a bit more time, and another ring of the front door bell. It was a messenger from a florist's shop, with a package of flowers—$15 worth, C. O. D. He, too, was sent away.

Came the dawn. Came Mrs. Kidd to police headquarters. "I'm getting mighty tired of this," she said. "Won't you do something about it?" Detectives R. T. Denny and S. C. Dillingham promised they would.

SUMTER JURY RAPS GAMBLING TRAFFIC

Constitution Editorial Is Cited in Presentments in Americus.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. AMERICUS, Ga., May 30.—Adjourning without returning indictments against alleged violators, the Sumter county grand jury today tossed responsibility for operation of slot machines, punch boards and other gambling devices into the laps of county and city officials and subsequent grand juries.

"This vice," declared the body's presentments, "can be eliminated now in Sumter. Later, when the traffic becomes financially and politically entrenched, we will find ourselves where Florida and Alabama are or have been."

So great has become the traffic in Atlanta and other towns and cities in the state, it now is a source of bitter editorial comment by newspapers. The grand jury's attention was called to an editorial in The Atlanta Constitution, dealing with the subject, which was made a part of the jury's presentments.

The grand jury recommended that the November grand jury make a thorough investigation of the illegal traffic and determine if proper legal action has been taken to end the gaming evil in Sumter.

"If that body finds it has not, we suggest those responsible for its continuance be brought before that body for investigation, as well as those whose neglect of duty have permitted their operations."

Sumter county's grand jury today returned indictments against W. A. MacDonald, justice of the peace, Americus district, charging malpractice on five counts. The grand jury recommended he be permitted to continue the business of his office until final disposition has been made of the charges.

dren, women and a great number of Atlanta citizens who after an arduous day's work are forced to stand in aisles of overcrowded street cars and buses and hang precariously on straps and seats with their arms full of books and purchases.

Mayor Issues Warning.

Last night Mayor Hartfield's comment was: "Just let Mr. Belle Isle get through talking and then I'll have something to say."

Belle Isle also said an official of the Georgia Power Company was drafting an amendment to the taxicab ordinance "to put us out of business, and deprive the people of Atlanta of the service and convenience of more cabs at a cheaper rate."

Cites Ordinance.

Belle Isle made public copies of what he said was the ordinance. The section to which he took particular exception follows:

Section 9. All vehicles operated as cabs, taxicabs, or livery cars shall be operated only from public or private garages or from fixed stands in the streets, and before using the streets for stands or parking places, such vehicles must first secure a permit from the department of police to park at the particular stand, which permit shall not be granted by the department of police except by and with the consent of adjacent property owners, and no space shall be allotted livery cars, cabs or taxicabs to exceed more than three vehicles in one particular locality. Neither livery cars, cabs or taxicabs shall cruise along the streets for the purpose of picking up or soliciting passengers nor shall the owners, operators or drivers of such vehicles solicit passengers along the streets nor permit persons in their employ to make such solicitation, nor shall said cabs, taxicabs or livery cars pick up extra or additional passengers when calling for or transporting a person or persons for hire or while en route to answer a call, provided that it shall not be unlawful for the driver of a taxicab to pick up and discharge passengers at more than one point upon a trip if such pick-up and discharge is made in compliance with the request of the initial passenger or passengers communicated at the time of engaging or boarding a cab. Livery cars shall be rented only on an hourly basis or in excess of one hour, and such livery cars shall not be operated with taximeters attached to same.

Preston S. Arkwright, president of Georgia Power Company, last night issued the following statement:

"Mr. Belle Isle's statement merely confirms what has been apparent for some while, that he is seeking to abandon the taxicab business and set up a jitney bus business. The deterioration of Atlanta's taxicab service, which has caused so much public complaint in recent years dates from the time when he began neglecting his own passengers in an effort to take passengers away from the street car and bus service."

Lands Bus, Trolley Service.

"It is widely recognized that Atlanta's street car and bus service is one of the best in the United States and unfortunately our taxicab service in recent years has frequently been described as one of the worst in the United States. Turning the cabs into jitneys will not improve the taxicab situation and it may damage the street car service."

"It is quite true that we intend to protest to the city council. There is no secret about the fact that we have prepared a proposed ordinance and a petition and we intend to file it over our own signature tomorrow."

Belle Isle replied:

"Our company has not and will not violate any ordinances of the city of Atlanta regarding its rates or operation methods. We are not violating the ordinance abolishing jitney buses in operating the 10-cent taxi."

Belle Isle explained that the 10-cent rate will apply to each passenger picked up or delivered anywhere in the four-mile zone, and that the regular charge of 10 cents per one-half mile traveled outside the four-mile zone will apply.

GEORGIA MASONS HEAR CARL CLAUDY

Senior Grand Deacon's Address Sponsored by Fulton, DeKalb Members.

Carl H. Claudy, senior grand deacon of the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia and executive secretary of the Masonic Service Association of the United States, addressed Georgia Master Masons last night at a meeting sponsored by the Masons of Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Yesterday, Claudy was honored at a luncheon given by the Atlanta Masonic Temple Officers' Association, and at 8 o'clock tomorrow night will talk again at the Scottish Rite business meeting in the Masonic temple. All Blue Lodge Masons are invited to attend.

Claud was met on arrival yesterday by Grand Master William M. Sapp, of Dalton; President Paul Weir, of the local Masonic Service Association; President J. J. Buga, of the Temple Officers' Association; Starr Peck, chairman of the welcoming committee, and others.

The visitor has been active in Masonic fields for the last 30 years, and has contributed much to Masonic literature. Among his writings are "Foreign Countries," "The Unknown Mason" and "Washington's Home and Fraternal Life."

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to speculation as to whether he should marry or risk the draft.

RECORDS OF STATE FELONS MAY LEAD TO DEPORTATION

10,000 To Be Checked To Determine How Many Entered U. S. Illegally and Can Be Shipped Out

Records of 10,000 Georgia criminals will be checked during the next few days to determine how many of them gained illegal entrance to the United States and are subject to a pardon upon the specific condition that they be deported.

The move to pardon those gaining illegal admission to this country was instituted yesterday by the State Board of Penal Correction.

Dual Effect.

A. M. Anderson, secretary of the board, said the plan would have a dual effect—rid the prison system of a number of petty criminals the state should not have to support and at the same time help the United States to enforce the immigration laws.

Anderson said the criminals would be delivered directly to immigration authorities "after we have proof they are going to be deported." He added that "in case of murderers or particularly dangerous characters, we will proceed carefully and pardons may be withheld in some instances."

Two already have been deported—one to Italy and the other to England—while yesterday the state executive department issued a pardon for another to be deported to Canada. Officials said they did not know how many others would be affected by the move.

The two already deported were listed in prison records as Tony Angelo, 43, convicted of burglary in Fulton county in 1936, sent back to Italy, and John F. Stanley, given 10 years for burglary in Richmond county in 1933, deported to England.

The pardon issued yesterday was for 18-year-old Harold Thompson, who has served nine months of a three to four year sentence for shooting at another in Monroe county. Warden Mark Sims, of Tattall prison, yesterday was arranging for deportation of Thompson to Canada.

GEORGIA EDUCATORS NAMED SPONSORS

Sanford, Sutton and Cocking Honored by World Congress.

Three prominent Georgia educators have been appointed to serve as sponsors of the World Congress on Education for Democracy to be held August 15, 16 and 17 at Teachers' College, Columbia University.

They are Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University of Georgia; Dr. Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools; and Walter D. Cocking, dean of the school of education at the University of Georgia.

Invitations to participate in the congress have been extended to 27 national business, labor, agricultural and other lay organizations. Each of these organizations has been asked to form a committee on public education to attend the congress and to express their views on educational problems to a representative group of educators.

Purpose of the congress is to consider the question, "How Shall We Educate for Citizenship in Democracy?" and possibly to define the responsibility of the schools in providing the type of education necessary for the preservation and advancement of democracy.

James G. Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville Banner and immediate past president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, will be guest speaker at the final summer meeting of the Atlanta Advertising Club at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at Rich's tea room.

Mr. Stahlman, who will be in Atlanta to receive an honorary degree of doctor of laws from the Atlanta Law School tonight, has been an active leader in the campaign to develop the southern slash pine newsprint industry, having worked closely for many years with the late Dr. Charles Herty.

Fred Storey, president of the club, will preside, and the speaker will be introduced by George C. Biggers. Legare Davis and Avery Austin will have charge of the program. Plans for the annual dinner dance will be discussed.

RETIRING PRINCIPAL PRAISES ATHLETICS

Miss Flynn Emphasizes Wholesome Influence Is Exerted on Girls.

Athletics are having a wholesome influence on young women of the present generation, Miss Lillian R. Flynn said yesterday on the eve of her retirement Friday as principal of the Frank L. Stanton school after 25 years' service. Basketball, tennis, swimming and other such sports are making girls stronger and healthier than they were a generation ago, the retiring principal explained.

Miss Flynn, other faculty members and class presidents of the school were honored yesterday at a luncheon given by the Parent-Teacher Association. At a previous luncheon she was presented with a gold wrist watch by fellow teachers.

After her retirement Miss Flynn plans to take a rest. For the past few months she said she has been too busy even to see a picture show. She lives at 156 Seventh street, N. E.

"I'm going to miss my school," Miss Flynn said. "I have always enjoyed working with children. However, I plan to make frequent visits to Stanton so as to keep in touch with the teachers and pupils."

'BUDDY POPPY DAY' PROCLAIMED HERE

Hartsfield Urges Atlantans To Support Friday Sale.

A proclamation designating Friday, June 2, as "Buddy Poppy Day" and urging Atlantans to support the sale of poppies "as both a civic and patriotic duty," was issued yesterday by Mayor Hartsfield.

The proclamation points out that the "Buddy Poppy" is universally recognized as the official memorial flower of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and that the entire proceeds of the sale will be devoted to child welfare and relief of needy veterans.

The sale is sponsored locally by the Louis J. Dinkler Post No. 3583, and Greater Atlanta Post No. 390, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

DRUGGISTS WARNED ON NEW STATE LAW

Many Sales Forbidden, Starting Tomorrow.

Dr. J. E. Rush, chief drug inspector of the State Department of Agriculture, issued a warning yesterday against the "counter sale" of drugs labeled as dangerous by an act of the legislature which becomes effective tomorrow.

These include amylal, luminol, veronal, barbitol, acid diethylbarbituric, sulfanilamide, pronolyn, neoprontasil, "for any salt, derivative, or compound of preparations containing any of the foregoing substances."

Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture, after a conference with Attorney General Ellis Arnall, ordered all druggists to make complete inventories of stocks on hand and keep invoices of future purchases for official inspection.

LANE DRUG STORES TO OPEN NEW UNIT

Lane Drug Stores, Inc., will take over operation of the store in the Connally Building, Whitehall and Alabama streets, effective tomorrow, it was announced yesterday. A long-term lease has been signed for the location.

The store will be closed all day tomorrow for cleaning and stocking and will be formally opened for business at 7 o'clock Friday morning. It is planned to renovate and air condition the store in the near future, making it one of the most modern in the south. The site has long been regarded as one of the best drug store locations in the city.

REV. H. A. DEWALD ELECTED BY SYNOD

Evangelical Body Completes Organization.

SALISBURY, N. C., May 30.—(AP)—Organization of the Southern Synod of the Evangelical and Reformed Church was completed here today with election of the Rev. Harry D. Althouse, of Hickory, N. C., as president for a two-year term.

Althouse is head of the North Carolina Classis of the Reformed Church which will be dissolved in 1940 under the plan of merger adopted recently by the Evangelical and Reformed Churches.

The Rev. H. A. Dewald, pastor of the First Evangelical Church of Atlanta, was elected vice president; Dr. J. C. Leonard, of Lexington, N. C., was named secretary, and the Rev. Milton Whitener, of Salisbury, treasurer.

The new group includes 61 congregations and more than 10,000 members.

30 PLANES ENTER GEORGIA AIR TOUR; EXPECT 20 MORE

Plans Nearly Completed for 3-Day Jaunt Over the State, Taking Off From Atlanta June 8.

More than 30 planes already have been entered for the fourth annual Georgia Air Tour, June 8-11, and at least 20 more are expected to take part in the four-day flight around the state.

Officials in charge announced yesterday that arrangements virtually have been completed and all indications point to one of the most successful tours on record.

To Entertain Filers.

Planes from all parts of Georgia and many from adjoining states will gather here next Wednesday and the visiting fliers will be entertained at a buffet supper that night by the Atlanta Aero Club, co-sponsor of the tour with the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

The schedule for the first day calls for a luncheon stop at Augusta and a night stop at Savannah. On June 9 the planes will hop to St. Simons Island where they will take part in air show the next afternoon.

Return June 11.

After taking part in the dedication of the Howard E. Coffin recreation center in Brunswick on June 11, the tour will return by way of Macon, Macon and Griffin.

Committee members in charge are William K. Jenkins, general chairman; William D. Owens, assistant general chairman; Jesse Draper, Wiley Wright, Ralph Lockwood, Mr. Owens, advance arrangements; Mr. Lockwood, tour manager; Winship Nunnally, member agent to Brunswick; William J. Stoddard, social committee; Mrs. Charlotte Frye and Mrs. Harry Ballance, women's committee; Mr. Wright, technical committee; Dr. Fraser L. Adams Jr., contests, and John K. Ottley Jr., finance committee.

Judge Rules on Round One of Bout Between Huiet and James

COURT REFUSES TO ENJOIN HUIET

that if any appeal is to be taken, it should be in the courts of competent jurisdiction.

Hard Feeling Cited.

"There is so much feeling between Mr. Huiet and Mr. James that I would not be willing to put Mr. James back in the office," Judge Moore said following several outbursts which punctuated proceedings.

The James suit is the first one yet filed in the series of controversies in which Huiet has become involved in the past several months. Huiet has engaged in brushes with Governor Rivers, State Auditor Zach Arnold, members of his advisory board and several employees whom he wished to replace.

"Didn't somebody say you were glad you were fired so you could fight in the open?" Judge Moore asked James. "That implied fighting in the dark."

"He fought me with members of the state senate before he was fired, and that's knifing in the back," Huiet responded.

Affidavits Offered.

Huiet's counsel offered affidavits by W. A. Clyde, labor department employee, and Huiet in which James was quoted as saying he withheld information from Huiet of impending legislative action affecting the labor department on orders of Governor Rivers.

At the last session of the legislature a bill was introduced in the house affecting the department. The senate amended it to shear Huiet of nearly all his powers as labor commissioner. The amendment later was withdrawn in the senate and the original bill vetoed by the Governor because of the controversy.

Discharged James.

At that time Huiet discharged James and Marion O'Connor, director of the re-employment service, charging them with "political maneuvering and trickery" in connection with the amendment. Another affidavit by Marion Williamson, employee of the labor department, purported to tell of political activities of James against Huiet.

Affidavits by Representatives Robert Elliott, of Muscogee, and Jack Forrester, of Crisp, also told of alleged efforts of James to lobby in behalf of the amendment when it came before the house early in March.

Legality of James' appointment as executive director also was attacked.

Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to Governor Rivers, was summoned to attest authority of certain executive orders of former Labor Commissioner T. E. Whitaker, who appointed James, set his salary and ordered him placed under civil service.

Paul Lindsay, attorney for James, said there was "a doubt in my mind" as to whether James was under civil service, but insisted the executive order placed James under the merit system "in so far as possible" under the existing law.

Eibert Tuttle and Al Henson, counsel for Huiet, contended orders naming James to the post were not under the seal of the department of labor and, therefore, were not official.

They claimed James was illegally appointed; that the post should have been filled by an advisory committee set-up under the labor act.

LEGISLATORS OPPOSE HEAVY WPA PROJECTS

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(P)—A movement has started within a house appropriations subcommittee, informed legislators said today, to prevent WPA or its successor from handling heavy construction projects.

Numerous witnesses have testified in a congressional inquiry that the use of relief labor on construction projects has sometimes doubled or tripled their cost.

The committee is considering a proposal under which relief funds for the next fiscal year would be divided between WPA and the Public Works Administration, with the latter handling the heavy projects.

CUNNINGHAM RITES TO BE HELD TODAY

Son of Atlanta Judge Will Be Buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Alfred Austell Cunningham, who died at Sarasota, Fla., May 27, will be buried in Arlington cemetery in Washington today.

Mr. Cunningham, 58, was the son of Judge and Mrs. John D. Cunningham, of Atlanta, and is survived by his wife and two sisters, Mrs. William A. Graham, of Decatur, and Mrs. Howard Bucknell, of New York and Florida. While still under age, he enlisted in the Spanish-American War and went to Cuba. On his return he enlisted in the United States marine corps as aviator and was one of the pioneers in the service, being one of the first three men to fly a government plane. During the World War he served over seas with the French and British previous to the United States entering into the war and later returned as captain of his company and was on the front during the duration of the war. After having been stationed at the War College in Washington, Eagle Island Navy Yard, Philadelphia, Honolulu, and San Domingo he was sent home on sick leave and retired in 1936.

April Business in District Is Well Above 1938 Period

Department Store Sales Top Month's Figures in Recent Years.

April business and industrial activity in the Sixth Federal Reserve district was well above April, 1938, but declined somewhat from the preceding month, the monthly business review released last night by the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta reported.

The daily rate of department store sales increased less than the seasonal amount, but still was the highest for April of any recent year, the report said. Atlanta retail trade declined 10.6 per cent from the preceding month, but showed a 4.6 increase over April, 1938.

Residential Contracts Up.

The value of residential contracts awarded during the month was 14 per cent larger than for March and the largest for any month in 11 years, while residential contracts declined 8.6 per cent in the 37 eastern states. Building permits in Atlanta totaled $487,000 for April compared to $438,000 for last March, and $298,000 for March, last year.

Other highlights of the review included:

Electric power production for March increased 20.1 over March, last year, compared with a national average gain of 11.1 per cent.

Bank Clearings Drop.

Estimates based on latest available figures indicated reserve deposits on May 17, amounting to 185.2 millions of dollars were about 41.4 millions, or 28.8 per cent in excess of legal requirements. Bank clearings in 26 cities in the district declined 10.9 per cent from March to April, but were 3.5 per cent greater than a year ago, while the 141 reporting cities in the rest of the country reported a 3.3 per cent decrease.

Total farm income in the six states were 14 per cent smaller in the first quarter of 1939 than in the first quarter of 1938. Receipts from crop marketings were down 42.3 per cent, but income from livestock and livestock products was 4.5 per cent more. Combined crops and livestock receipts were 28.9 per cent smaller, but this was partly offset by a large increase in government benefit payments, the survey commented. Georgia farm income for the first three months of the year was $15,853,000 as compared to $17,363,000 for the first quarter of 1938.

Peach Outlook Good.

Prospective peach production in the 10 southern peach states based on the May 1 condition, was 16,191,000 bushels, compared with 16,070,000 bushels produced last year. Production in Georgia and Florida was reported as smaller than in 1938, but increases were indicated in Alabama, Louisiana and Mississippi.

ATLANTA HAILS NEW 10c ECONOMY CAB

Owned and Operated by Black & White Cab Co.

Saturday afternoon, just four days ago, we put the new grey 10c Economy Cabs on the street. They supplied Atlanta with its first real 10c cab-ride—four miles for a dime. And they became the busiest cabs in town—instantly.

We made no announcements. We ran no advertising. We just put them out there—and you put them to work in a hurry.

MORE 10c CABS COMING

In fact the demand was so great that we have already ordered an additional fleet. And you'll keep those busy, too—and more. And we'll keep on adding more as you make them profitable.

Thus Atlanta catches up with cities right across the country where the 10c cab has been established, and where the people have learned to share taxicabs, and ride to town for a dime.

DRINKING ON DUTY, FIREMAN OUSTED

Two Other Employees Are Suspended, One for Insubordination.

Determination of the board of firemasters and Fire Chief C. C. Styron to eliminate drinking among members of the department last night resulted in the discharge of J. C. Cawthorn, of Company No. 8.

Councilman John T. Marler, board chairman, said the board "backed up Chief Styron wholeheartedly, and would co-operate with him, in efforts to stop drinking by firemen on duty."

Cawthorn, a first-year man, pleaded guilty to the charge of drinking on the job. L. R. Connally, of Company No. 5, pleaded guilty to charges of insubordination. He was suspended for 60 days.

J. P. Robinson was suspended for 10 days, for reporting for duty in an "abnormal condition." All actions were taken by the board upon recommendation of Chief Styron.

The board recommended sending a representative of the department to the R-1 Cross training school in Durham, N. C., June 11 to 21. W. E. Morgan, of Company No. 18, who was injured in 1935, applied for pension, due to the injury.

Members of the board present at the meeting were Councilmen W. T. Knight, E. A. Minor and C. L. Chusewood.

Randolph is chairman of the house committee. He told the Washington Evening Star: "The job is a combination of a headache, a heartache and bodyache, which I no longer propose to bear."

The statement was made amidst a furor touched off by a current investigation of milk regulations in the district. Working under a house subcommittee, police placed voice recording devices in hotel rooms and other places and garnered a wealth of conversation, some of it not connected with milk.

The local press said that in one of the recorded discussions an unidentified man talked about efforts to change paving specifications and that he mentioned a possible $20,000 payment in case the deal went through.

COLLISION FORCES CAR INTO WINDOW

Two Persons Cut in Crash on Marietta.

The front-row window of a wholesale wine and beer establishment was damaged and two persons were cut and bruised last night when two cars collided on Marietta street, near Hunnicutt, forcing one car to jump the curb and strike the window, according to police.

The injured were Rowland Coble, 27, of 720 Glass street, N. W., and J. R. Aderhold, 43, of 820 DeKalb avenue, who were riding in a car driven by John W. Davis, of a Whiteford avenue address, police reported.

The Davis car, proceeding north, struck a vehicle traveling south, driven by Robert L. Bennett, 26, negro, of a Williams street address. The wine and beer establishment damaged was R. H. Hogg's, 520 Marietta street. Damage to the window was estimated by police at $25.

BYERS REMOVES NINE, NAMES NEW BOARDS

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. FAYETTEVILLE, Ga., May 30. Among the first official acts of Judge Chester A. Byers, of the Griffin judicial circuit, recently appointed to succeed the late Judge W. E. H. Searcy, was the removal of the incumbent jury commissioners and county registrars in Fayette county, and appointment of new boards.

Judge Byers removed Jury Commissioners F. W. McClenney, E. P. Kerlin, John Robertson, W. B. Elder, J. J. Jackson and E. C. Hardy and appointed in their stead Charles Austin, A. L. Matthews, L. A. Harris, B. H. Gill, W. W. McEachern and E. B. Mask.

He also removed County Registrars J. J. Davis, R. H. Huddleston and H. H. Swanson and appointed J. R. Adams, C. S. Graves and H. R. Harp.

No reason was assigned for the court's order.

U.S. RURAL WOMEN 'ROAST' BAKING OF BRITISH SISTERS

LONDON, May 30.—(P)—British cookery was eyed critically today by American farm wives attending the conference of Associated Country Women of the World.

"We could show them a thing or two about baking," commented Mrs. Elizabeth Coleman, of Lexington, Ky. "I would like to go into the kitchen and make them some good cornbread."

Mrs. Roy McKinney, also of Lexington, whose 15-year-old son, Roy McKinney Jr., paid half the $300 for her trip from profits on his tobacco crop, said she missed homemade biscuits.

The conference, attended by approximately 5,000 women from 57 countries, opened with a keynote of world peace.

Fishin' for Chickens Charged to Youth

Succulent crumbs, attached to a fishing line and hook, produced a phenomenon of levitation last night which led to the arrest of a 17-year-old resident of a two-story duplex dwelling on a charge of stealing six of his neighbor's chickens.

On complaint of B. M. Langley, occupant of the lower apartment at 421 Fair street, S. W., and owner of 50 chickens, Patrolmen Roy Wall and Harry McWilliams, after an investigation, took into custody Hugh Lackey.

Langley said he happened to see the fishing line suddenly tauten, and one of his prized fowls rise inexplicably into the air and through a second floor window.

Marion C. Pruitt, of Atlanta, secretary treasurer.

The series will close Friday night with a banquet at the Biltmore hotel at which Dr. F. K. Boland Sr., of Atlanta, will be the principal speaker.

The Next Question

Following the astonishing report of county physicians on the physical status of 521 persons receiving relief, as unemployables, from Fulton county, one more question should be asked and authoritatively answered in order to satisfy public skepticism as to the operation of the relief set-up.

That question is, how many case workers, or investigators, are employed and at what salaries?

Of the 521 examined by the physicians it is reported that 33 per cent, one-third, are physically fit for work, of any description, while another 24 per cent are able to at least do part-time work of some kind.

The doctors could not locate 140 of 521 cases. Forty-eight had either given vacant lots as their addresses or were unknown at the addresses given. Four were in prison, four are dead and 41 are ineligible because they live outside of the county. One is a fugitive from justice, two are in the hospital, one "objected" to relief but accepted a monthly check and another returned the check each month. And so on.

After eliminating those able to work and those the doctors could not locate, for reasons such as given above, it appears that of the 521 examined only 224 are unable to perform any labor, are actually unemployable, and otherwise comply with the requirements for relief acceptance. If the same proportion holds true with the 2,500 cases on the relief rolls still unexamined, it would reduce the burden of relief on the county, and its taxpayers, 57 per cent. Or it would permit use of this saving, or part of it, in more adequate care of those who really need public support.

The relief organization, however, has been presumed, by the public, to make careful investigation of all cases. It has been taken for granted that sufficient case workers are employed to check on each claimant for relief and to make sure, by visits to the home addresses given, that all statements made by all applicants are true.

If the relief organization has been unable, due to lack of funds, to make these investigations, some plan should be immediately worked out to guarantee that similar conditions to those now uncovered do not occur again, at least not in anything like such startling proportion of the cases.

On the other hand, if there has been a sufficient number of case workers on the salary rolls and if they have simply failed to do their jobs properly, new people who will make the requisite checks should be employed in their places.

It is unfair both to the taxpayers and to the truly deserving recipients of relief to permit a condition to continue under which such abuses as those exposed by the county physicians are possible.

Step-Child of Georgia.

Definition of a Georgia peach: the neglected step-child of Georgia. That's the tag that Ellis Arnall, attorney general of the state, placed on it in an address in connection with the opening of the peach season at Macon. Charging that peach production is a "neglected step-child" and urging Georgians to take the lead and create the demand by advertising "our own product," Arnall reviewed some facts. He declared that hotels and restaurants in Georgia, the birthplace of the American peach industry and known far and wide as the home of the peach, have found the demand for fresh Georgia peaches so small they can handle at a profit only the canned variety from California.

Then he hit the nail on the head by saying: "If the people of Georgia fail to create a demand for their own product, can they complain that more enterprising states have encroached on their markets? The problem, then, is to make our markets not only peach conscious, but Georgia peach conscious. The people of Georgia, who have so long taken the peach for granted, must assume the lead. The demand will never be created until Georgia people discover the Georgia peach."

For correctness of Arnall's premise, one need only to look at the successful campaigns of Iowa, with its corn, and Maine, with its potatoes. Besides the nation-wide publicity these states have gained from their campaigns, the results in dollars and cents have been highly gratifying. Georgia can duplicate the successes of these other states. A step forward is the fact that 1940 automobile license tags will advertise the Georgia peach. But, in the final analysis, to be successful, the campaign must have the support and co-operation of all of its citizens.

Taxing Government Bonds

That section of Secretary Morgenthau's tax revision recovery plan, calling for the removal of federal income tax exemptions from future government, state and municipal bonds, if enacted into law, is likely to have far-reaching detrimental consequences. First, interest rates will have to be increased to make such securities saleable, adding much to the cost of borrowing in the states and municipalities. Second, there is logical reason for doubting that the proposal can surmount constitutional barriers. Third, the people will oppose it once its bad side is fully realized.

If it means anything to its advocates the plan has already been given a practical test and was found wanting. In Massachusetts, up to 32 years ago, state and municipal bonds were taxed. This had the effect of greatly decreasing the value of the bonds or forcing a higher rate of interest to sell them in competition with other securities. Then a law was enacted making such bonds non-taxable. The effect was immediately beneficial. It placed securities, backed by the people of Massachusetts, on a par with those of other states and cities.

It is understandable, therefore, why state and municipal authorities are acting in accord to defeat the proposal. No state in the Union is in a position to assume the added burden. Practically every municipality is suffering under the burden of meeting increasing relief demands in the face of decreasing tax returns due to a lag in business recovery.

Consider the poor taxpayer, the little fellow who is now giving up 25 per cent of his income, unknowingly, in invisible taxes. By 1940, the interest on the national debt, alone, will come to an estimated $1,000,000,000 annually. Add the normal increase in interest rates invariably following business expansion, plus the added rate necessary to make all forms of government, state and municipal bonds saleable in a competitive market, when yields will be greater than at present, and the effect of the exemption will become more apparent. The estimated $300,000,000 collected in taxes might go into the treasury, technically, as a tax on the bondholder's income, but the increase in interest to make the securities saleable will come out of the pocket of the average man, who owns no bonds of any kind.

For Permanent Assets

Thomas J. Watson, president of the International Business Machines Corporation, speaking in Atlanta yesterday, went directly to the heart of the national problems of unemployment and business recession when he said that a greater proportion of the money spent for recovery should go into constructive things, permanent assets for the country.

"Let us build permanent assets in this country, and let us get our idle workers employed, doing something constructive," he urged.

Mr. Watson is one of the sanest, most constructive thinkers upon economic problems in the country. He brings to his analysis of current problems the benefits of almost unique business opportunities for observation and the advantage of a mind trained to cut directly to the core of a problem.

He realizes that expenditures of public funds, to be of lasting benefit, must be expenditures for permanent, wealth increasing assets. Money merely handed out is spent a few times, from consumer to retailer to distributor to manufacturer and so forth. Money put into construction that remains as an economic asset, is always adding to the wealth of the nation, is a perpetual earner of public dividends.

Speaking of the necessity of business and government co-operating for the good of both, and of the nation, Mr. Watson cited the forceful rustic parable of the mule. "A kicking mule never pulls," he said, "whereas a pulling mule doesn't kick." Both government and business, he said, have made mistakes. Neither has always been right. The thing to do today, is for both to forget the errors of the past and join forces for the national good.

"I believe it is our duty," said Mr. Watson, "to take good care of all the people of our country who are in need. I think that is our first duty as citizens and I am willing to do my part, no matter what it may mean to me personally, to bring that about. But in our respective communities, let us figure out means where, when we spend money, we build something that will benefit us in the future. Let us build assets, and get people to work, and the ones who are not able to work—let us arrange for permanent care for them."

In its innocence, Hollywood pays an author up to $100,000 for a poorer plot than the Dies committee can find under a stone.

At Bogalusa, La., a hen lays an egg with raised lettering on the shell that reads, "War Is Ahead." History tells us that this usually is so.

Some of our dreamer savants now feel that the universe is expanding. It will be a surprise to Hitler, who thought it was he.

Editorial of the Day

A LAW THAT CAUSES LABOR TROUBLES
(From The Philadelphia Inquirer.)

In opposing any alteration in the labor act which popularly bears his name, except one to give employers the right of petition, Senator Wagner tells the house committee that "every change means new lawsuits, new uncertainties, new areas of doubt and dissension and disagreement." But have we ever had a law that produced these same undesirable results in greater measure?

Ever since it was instituted, the Wagner act has been a cause of confusion and conflict. This was inevitable on account of its essentially one-sided nature. Besides discriminating unfairly against employers and the public, it hasn't given even organized labor as a whole a square deal.

The courts have been kept busy correcting the mistakes of the Labor Board—to use the most charitable term—committed under the broad powers it possesses, and in trying to clarify the puzzling provisions of the statute.

Congress knows well enough what is the matter with the Wagner act. No more long-drawn-out hearings are necessary to show what changes are imperative. And it will be a big black blot on the record of this congress if the session is allowed to end without rewriting the most unfair law—and a chief handicap on recovery—ever placed on the federal statute books.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

GHOST OF A POOCH WASHINGTON, May 30.—Memorial Day, when village cemeteries are decked with flowers, and bands of amateur marchers parade the dusty roads, and oratory prevails in the hot sun, is a day for historical sentiment. So this seems like a good time to tell how the ghost of Queen Victoria's white woolly dog returned to haunt America.

The animal, one imagines, was one of the more unpleasant denizens of the Victorian age—small, much washed, with pinkish eyes and a tendency to yap and snap. Yet, he was held in such affection by the good Queen that he virtually sealed the alliance between Victorian England and the France of the second empire. His brief appearance on history's stage occurred during the visit of Victoria to her prince consort, Albert, to the Emperor Louis Napoleon and the beautiful Eugenie, Napoleon and Eugenie had gone to all lengths to please the British sovereigns, even attempting to reproduce the Windsor atmosphere in their state guest rooms. Victoria, delighted by these attentions, exclaimed to the Emperor that all was so perfect she would have thought herself at home, if only the white woolly dog had been there. An imperial order was murmured to a marquis domo; a courier dashed off to London, and, before long, the little animal had crossed the channel and was howling with astonishment in his mistress' lap. Thereafter, for all his strange appearance and far from respectable past, the Emperor was always a favorite of the Queen.

HOT WATER BOTTLES It must be much more than half a century since the white woolly dog was laid away, in whatever resting place Queen Victoria provided for her defunct pets. His ghost came back at the behest of Mrs. Roosevelt, who strangely summoned it at a luncheon of political ladies here in Washington. The President's wife, half amused, half rueful, described some of the tribulations brought upon her by the approaching visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

The luncheon heard, with some astonishment, how Mrs. Roosevelt had been warned that the King liked a "little blast" on his bedroom sofa that he preferred to the comforter folded in accordion pleats; that there must be plenty of hot water for the hot water bottles of the Queen's ladies-in-waiting, and that, above all, supplies of soap and towels must be ample. Before long, the story had been printed, and America was reveling in amused surprise at these guests who seemed unwilling to leave the least detail to chance and wished to be prepared for cold spells in June.

AND A GREAT TRADITION The connection between the hot water bottles of Queen Elizabeth's ladies-in-waiting and Queen Victoria's white woolly dog may not be immediately apparent. But it is there. The memorandum from which Mrs. Roosevelt quoted came, not from London, but from Paris. It is understood to have been thoughtfully transmitted by Ambassador William Christian Bullitt, and to have been borrowed, in the first instance, from the French foreign office.

The truth is, that while woolly dog established a tradition in French entertainments of British royalty—a tradition which still survives, and was handsomely obeyed during the King's and Queen's recent state visit to Paris. They stayed at the Palais D'Orsay, a large, handsome, but uncomfortable public monument. The tradition dictated that their suite be transformed into a home from home, and the transformation was not easy.

Perhaps an official of the foreign office made a special pilgrimage to the royal bedrooms in Buckingham Palace to prepare for the great task. It is nice to think of him, taking careful notes on linen blankets, accordion-pleated comforters, the proper temperature of water for hot water bottles, and ideal quantities of towels and soap. It is nice to think of him composing his memorandum, and checking off the details in a last, hasty inspection of those large, once-bleak chambers in the Palais D'Orsay. At any rate, whoever did it, such a memorandum was composed, and found its way from Paris into the hands of Mrs. Roosevelt.

What could be more natural than that Ambassador Bullitt, whose own hospitality is more princely than democratic, should have transmitted the memorandum? What could be more unexpected than the results? And what could be pleasanter, what more historically sentimental, than that half a continent should be briefly entertained by the small, noisy, pink-eyed spirit of a white woolly dog?

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

It may rain—
And you have to like it;
It may storm—
And you might as well grin;
But it's tough
If the rain keeps coming,
When it's time
For the game to begin.

You Never Know 'Em.

Wonder how many of the staid and quiet businessmen you meet every day have, in their earlier days, played professional baseball? There must be quite a few who smile secretly to themselves as some rabid, but oftentimes mistaken, fan, tells them condescendingly his views of some feature or other of the game. A game with which they are far, far more familiar than the informant who is so apt to take it for granted they haven't had the experience he has enjoyed. Though his has been confined to grandstand or bleacher expiring, and never on the diamond itself.

Talking myself with a well-known executive the other day, about the Crackers and this and that. He said he hadn't been to a game this season, and explained by remarking that, having played a lot of semi-pro ball in his younger days, he didn't dare risk becoming reinfected with the baseball bug. Because if he did he'd be going to every game and he'd tell with business.

And I won't name them, because I've forgotten some, but a letter came to this desk the other day from one of Atlanta's most famous bankers and richest men, recalling the days when he played shortstop and listing the other, ever so dignified and important business or professional men, who held other positions on the same team.

Couldn't Field, But Hitting.

There's a young fellow, most dignified for his years and working at a job that calls for lots of personality and "contacts," came into the office and remarked he thought he'd try and get off that afternoon to go to Ponce de Leon. "I used to play first base for such-and-such a team in Class D professional ball," he explained. "And I'm crazy about the game, to watch, even if I can't play any more," he said.

He had been, he admitted, quite a heavy hitter in his playing days, not far short of 400 percentage. But couldn't field for four years. "The chances always were good that any ball hit directly at me would go between my legs," he said.

pitcher's box. I ducked just in time and it missed my head but took off my cap in passing. I went to the manager right then and told him I was through pitching. I think the final score of that game was 26 to 6, or something like that."

The Shortstop Chawed 'Baccy.

"Nearly all the boys who play baseball," he continued, "go in for chewing tobacco. We had a shortstop, a little fellow and a whiz of a fielder, who used to crack the biggest wads of tobacco I ever saw into his mouth before every game. They'd make his right cheek stick out like a balloon and he'd make the ground muddy all round his position with tobacco juice."

"One day a hard ground was hit directly at him. It took a bad hop just before his feet and bounded up and hit him right on the Adam's apple. He swallowed that whole mouthful of tobacco, turned white despite his sun tan, and we had to carry him off the field."

"He's never chewed tobacco since and, today, if you offer him a plug it makes him sick."

"Who is he?" I asked.

"I'll tell you," was the answer. "He's in a different business now and you probably know him. Most folks in Atlanta do."

So now I'll always wonder, about all my friends who are smallish men, which one is the erstwhile shortstop with a strong allergy, now, for eatin' tobacco.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Sunday, May 31, 1914:
The housewarming of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce yesterday was one of the most brilliant civic events of recent years. Throughout the afternoon the building at Auburn avenue and North Pryor street was thronged with men and women who inspected the structure and attended the official exercises."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Friday, May 31, 1889:
"Charlie Martin struck his wife on the head, in a house on West Peters, last night."

This Morning

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"From every mountain side
Let freedom ring . . ."

One of the most unpleasant sounds that have ever hit upon these weathered eustachian tubes is the hissing of school children. We heard it at the motion picture, "The Confessions of a Nazi Spy," and we can agree with columnist Lewis Follett that even if this picture is necessary it should at least be denied to children under 16 years of age. To what extent German spying and propaganda in this country make counteractive like this necessary we do not know. The actual incidents on which this picture is based are, of course, no indication of extraordinary activity. Every country has its espionage service and every other country is subject to it. And the Bund meetings in Madison Square Garden and elsewhere have needed only to be known to be despised and repudiated by good Americans, including those of German birth.

The audience in which we saw this motion picture was whipped to a high degree of emotionalism and the emotions were hate, fear, loathing, and a hotly competitive patriotism. When Hitler was shown or some climax of gestapo villainy was reached there would be cries, shouts, exclamations and hisses from all parts of the audience. Most of the expressions were from school children. Many of us who are persuaded that this country needs advertising among its own people now for its institutions and ideals as against advertising given counter institutions and ideals in dictator states will wonder if the thing can't be done in some other way, in a way that won't call for hissing children.

In Toledo, Ohio, the other day, for a luncheon club meeting at which close the members faced a breeze-blown American flag and sang "My Country 'Tis of Thee" with extraordinary fervor, we spent an afternoon before train time seeing another and very different picture, "Let Freedom Ring." There were school children in this audience, too, and they were whipped to similarly vocal emotions about their country, but there was a vast difference in the noises. They cheered for America and the meaning of America. They applauded climaxes whose point was American freedom, American opportunity, and comparative dignity and independence of human beings in America, whatever their estate. They adored a hero who stood for decency, fair play, good fellowship and courage, and a heroine who loved and helped him through thick and thin of many a thrilling scene.

The difference between these two pictures is the difference between the kind of patriotism we need in America now (and always) and the kind we must develop only in last resort. It is the difference between having our school children sing "America" and having them sing "Germany." It is the difference between loving your own and hating somebody else's.

A TWO-FOLD WITNESS.

Interceded by New York newspapers upon his recent arrival on the Normandie, Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke, of London, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance, who had come to America well in advance of the sixth congress of the alliance, to be held in Atlanta, July 22-28, in order that he might attend the Southern Baptist Convention in Oklahoma City, the Northern Baptist Convention in Los Angeles, the National Baptist Conventions in Philadelphia and Los Angeles, and the Canadian Baptist Convention in Toronto, before coming on to Atlanta for the sixth world congress of Baptists, said, in reply to the question, What will the Baptist World Alliance in Atlanta say:

"Baptists are committed by their principles and their entire history to the championship of liberty. Religious freedom will have no small share of attention during the Atlanta Congress. We ought, and I am sure we shall, say something there which will be significant for coming days. I foresee the opening of doors long closed—in Russia for example. Our two-fold witness—for the Gospel and for freedom—was never more urgently needed, and everyone who attend the Atlanta Congress will help as a united world-communion more effectively to offer this witness."

Asked further concerning some of the outstanding personalities from abroad who will attend the congress, Dr. Rushbrooke said:

"The British delegation will be headed by Dr. P. W. Evans, president of Spurgeon's College, and Dr. W. Holmes Coats, president of the Baptist Theological Seminary of Glasgow, and president of the Baptist Union of Scotland. Other very distinguished leaders will be Dr. N. J. Nordstrom, of Sweden; Dr. Oswald Tark, of Estonia; Dr. Bela Udarnoki, of Hungary; Dr. L. Sezonov, of Rumania; Dr. H. Prochazka, of Prague; Dr. Hugo Luck, of Poland; Dr. Paul Schmidt, of Germany, and Dr. A. T. Ohn, from Australia. India, China, Japan, Africa, South America and Canada will come many prominent clergymen and laymen. The ambassador from Japan to the United States is one of the official delegates."

Dr. Rushbrooke went further to express appreciation to the American people for their backing in the successful effort which the Baptist World Alliance has carried through for religious freedom in Rumania, where, for many months, every Baptist church was closed by order of the minister of cults.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

RELIEF AND REVELATIONS There is this very definite fact about the problems of relief. Those on relief and those not on the rolls, do not know each other, do not see one another and do not at all understand one another. There is the second fact which seems quite apparent, which is that the director and his staff have not done a good job, either through inability so to do, or through lack of attention.

Because of this there is today a wider breach between those on relief and those not.

Most people were shocked at the revelations of yesterday regarding relief for unemployables. They learned there was one case in which the recipient of a relief check had married and did not need it but continued to accept it.

They learned that dead men had been "receiving" checks which were being cashed.

They learned checks were going to vacant lots and to houses where no such people lived as those to whom the checks were being sent. They learned others had left the county; others were in jail and still others had fled from police.

Almost 57 per cent were adjudged able to do some work. All this shocks the public mind. It ought to shock the public mind.

It is just as true that the plight of those requiring relief ought to shock the public mind and does not; at least not to the extent as did the revelations of the job done with public money.

The great danger and one which likely is impossible to avoid, is that there will be generalizing on specific instances and the whole setup will be damned and misunderstood.

POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS It safely may be assumed that, as usual, there is truth on both sides. The director may be able, as announced, to explain some of the astounding discoveries.

Yet the fact remains this is but another exhibit in the file which is growing in the public mind, and which causes that mind to believe that public relief generally has been incompetently administered.

There is a growing belief, not entirely justified, which existed before, and has no connection with the Atlanta case, that relief generally, all over the nation, has been too much of a racket; that there has been too little consideration given to the fact that public funds are, theoretically at least, a public trust.

There also is belief, which has some basis for its being, that relief generally has been inadequately administered; that waste has been general; that incompetents have been entrusted with small sums of money and have been entrusted with the administration of millions; that people are on the rolls who do not belong there and that no real effort has been made to sift out the undeserving.

That feeling exists and it grows. The Atlanta case will be but another log to feed the flame. It does seem to be true, in many instances, that there already have been investigations, that political appointments placed in charge of handling tremendous sums of money men and women incapable of handling them.

If there is one thing wrong with the American system of political appointments and elections, it is the custom of putting men of no experience in charge of affairs involving great sums of money and matters of a highly technical nature.

A few more cases need only to follow the small case in Atlanta and the Gallup poll will show a larger percentage of American minds registering disapproval of the handling of relief in America. There is no method of explaining it away. It is unfortunate. But true. The Atlanta report will be awaited with unusual interest.

THE REAL TRAGEDY Those who will suffer most will be those who are shocked to know that 80,000 persons, almost a fourth of Fulton county's population, had been on relief in one form or another.

Now to hear charged that vacant lots, dead persons, people who did not want or need the relief checks, empty houses and apparently non-existent people were receiving money while many who desperately needed it were not, is an even greater shock.

It is too bad those not on relief cannot know the utter hopelessness and tragedy of those unemployables who are, to use a phrase, real human wrecks. Morale, hope and ambition are gone from them. They utterly are defeated; they require medical care; food, clothes. The worst of these cases, in all probability, could not function if fed, clothed and given a job. Years of malnutrition, which is very close to starvation; years of ill-health, have done the job. Probably there was not too much with which to work in the beginning.

It is too bad those who thought that "Tobacco Road" was exaggerated cannot see worse things in their own county. The fact they have been hidden explains why so little has been done.

We have produced them. They are our problem.

Yet the fact they are our problem does not excuse, if they do exist, such conditions as are charged. It is to be hoped those who do need relief will not suffer from these revelations. In all probability, they will. If the charges are true, they must pay the real penalty until the machinery be set right and resumes functioning. It is fortunate publicity came when it did. It is unfortunate it did not come earlier.

When One Flyer Gets All the Headlines, We Overlook Who Can Fly As Well

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Before many moons have waxed and waned, citizens of America will face the job of electing another President to lighten or increase their burdens.

They will not test their available material and select the best man by elimination, as they choose a heavyweight champion, but they may choose more wisely if they have a mental picture of the man an ideal candidate should be.

He must be native born, for the constitution so decrees. He should be a Yankee, of old New England stock—chiefly because people have confidence in such a man, but also because we have no sounder stock in the nation.

He should be one with a middle-class background, to be free of secret class prejudice or class viewpoint and limitations.

He should be a graduate of some university, such as Yale, and should have proved the keenness of his mind by his record there. He might be a good President if he hadn't finished high school, but people have more confidence in a college product. Moreover, they like to feel that their President ranks at the top in all ways.

He should not be a novice in public life, nor a mere machine politician, pushed into higher and higher offices as reward for "regularity," but he should be an expert in public administration, schooled and trained by long experience.

(If he has an Oxford degree in law, government and civil service, so much the better.)

He should have experience in handling men and exercising power and also in expending great sums of public money.

He should have proved his ability to envision and construct great public works, and shown how to make them self-supporting and self liquidating.

He should have proved himself unafraid and incorruptible, unspoil by praise or success, without lust for money or power, loyal to duty, and beyond the reach of flattery.

Where could we find such a paragon?

Well, the above description of an "ideal candidate" is a sketchy but true biography of Robert Moses, the man who has charge of New York's parks and bridges.

Nobody has mentioned him as a candidate, and he hasn't a chance to get either party's nomination; but the point is that we have such men, some of them little known, and they aren't confined to either party.

The popular idea that this nation of 130 millions has few men big enough to be President is superstitious nonsense.

HOPE IS DWINDLING FOR 'BABY CLIPPER'

Only Chance Is Said To Be in a Remote Landing or Somewhere at Sea.

LONDON, May 30.—(P)—Hope for Thomas H. Smith and his "Baby Clipper" faded tonight to the outside chance he had landed in some remote part of the British Isles or was afloat at sea after his attempt to span the Atlantic in a flivver-type plane.

Most airport officials and pilots expressed fear, however, that Smith had been trying an even more risky flight than Karl Backmann who left Newfoundland May 16 on a projected hop to Sweden and has not been heard from since. Smith left Old Orchard Beach, Maine, Sunday in a type of monoplane seldom used for flights of more than 250 miles. His plane carried a fuel supply to last him 36 to 42 hours flying.

Even rumors which flooded northern Ireland and England yesterday reporting "a tiny strange plane" died out as hope for him dwindled.

Nevertheless, the air ministry and police and Coast Guard officials remained puzzled over identity of the small plane which flew low over Saint Bees Head, Cumberland, northwest England, yesterday evening at about the time Smith was expected.

"If it was not Smith's plane," one police official said, "it is remarkable that the pilot, whoever he was, has kept silent today."

Dental College Graduation List Includes McGuire and McGuire

It's Not Double Talk, It's Cupid; McGuire Weds McGuire.

The ghost of the McGuires will haunt graduation exercises of the Atlanta-Southern Dental College tomorrow night.

Most likely there won't be much evidence of bewilderment when Judge Hugh M. Dorsey presents a degree to Dr. Harold S. McGuire, valedictorian of the class. Proud mothers and fathers in the audience will smile and applaud and whisper to each other about what a nice young man he is—as they always do at graduations.

More of Same.

Then, when Dr. McGuire has receipts his just ovation and the audience has settled back ready to dish out more applause, the judge will clear his throat and move on to the next name.

"Dr. Patsy McGuire McGuire," he will say, and a charming young lady will stand to receive her diploma.

There may be a little stirring among the audience. Uneasy glances will be cast here and there. A few may wonder if the judge is stuttering or has relapsed into double talk.

Here Are Facts.

Let some unsuspecting soul should think he is having hallucinations or get into a terrific argument with his wife, here are the facts about the McGuires:

Harold S. McGuire and Patsy McGuire, were not related when they met at the dental college. Cupid went to work immediately and they were married in their junior year.

Started Years Ago.

But that's only part of the story. Apparently, it all started when Patsy's grandfather took up dentistry—many years ago. And since that time there has seemed to be no end to the McGuires in dentistry.

Patsy's mother, Dr. Daisy Zachary McGuire, was the first woman to graduate from the Atlanta-Southern Dental College in 1908. She is now practicing in Sylva, North Carolina.

Dr. Wayne P. McGuire, Patsy's father, was graduated from the same college in 1912 and is also practicing in Sylva. Last year Patsy's sister, Dr. Noracella McGuire, took her diploma from the dental college and is also practicing in the North Carolina city.

That's Not All.

Patsy's aunt, Dr. Jessie Zachary McGuire, was graduated from the college in 1921 and is practicing in Highlands, N. C.

If you think that's all, you're wrong. Patsy has another sister, Kitty Bean McGuire, who is going to enter the Atlanta-Southern Dental College as a freshman next year.

Like her husband, Dr. Patsy McGuire McGuire also is an honor graduate, being among the nine students of the class who will receive a key to the honorary dental

APARTMENT HOUSE IS PURCHASED HERE

3-Story Building Sold to Charles E. Stewart by Insurance Firm.

Sale of a three-story brick apartment house at 2169 Peachtree street, containing 12 apartments, fully occupied, was announced yesterday. The seller was the National Life Insurance Company of Vermont, and the purchaser Charles E. Stewart.

While the consideration was not announced, the property is assessed at about $25,000, and it was believed the price was in this immediate range. The sale was handled by G. W. Withers of Haas and Dodd, realtors.

Mr. Stewart also has purchased the adjoining lot, measuring 50 by 300 feet, and it is understood that improvements in conjunction with the apartment house are contemplated.

FLORIDA IS FACING FINANCIAL CRISIS

Governor Cone Puts State on Emergency Basis.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 30.—(P)—Governor Fred P. Cone put Florida on an emergency finance basis today while legislative committees continued to knock the life out of proposals for raising new public revenues.

"We are going to feed the state's charges and provide for the constitutional officers," Governor Cone told the cabinet.

"I won't approve the expenditure of funds for anything else if we don't have the money."

All checks taking money out of the treasury must be signed by the Governor.

Cone and the cabinet requested a conference with Speaker Wood of the house and President Butler of the senate at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow "to see if there is any way we could be helpful in solving the financial problems at present confronting us."

Comptroller J. M. Lee withheld distribution of state employees' paychecks totalling about $250,000 because of insufficient money to pay them and at the same time pay about $1,250,000 due to the public schools.

More special appropriations were voted in the house while the senate passed the biennial general appropriations bill totalling about $19,500,000.

Legislative leaders predicted a deficit that might reach $12,000,000 a year during the next two years on the basis of appropriations without new or increased revenues being provided.

Governor Cone told the cabinet he had suggested several revenue sources, but the legislature would not agree.

DIXIE SOLONS SEEK TO PEG MILL PAY

George Says Amendment Will Be Offered To Hold Wage at 30 Cents.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(P)—Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, said today a group of southern members of congress would seek legislation to peg minimum wages in the cotton, silk and rayon textile industries at 30 cents an hour.

George said a recent recommendation by the industry's wage-hour committee to fix minimum wages at 32.5 cents was "too much of a step up for the small units."

Under the present law, he said, the existing minimum of 25 cents would be automatically increased to 30 cents in October, but could be made higher by order of the wage-hour administrator, acting on the recommendation of the committee.

Those interested in holding the wage at 30 cents, George added, did not feel separate legislation could be passed this late in the session but hoped to offer their proposal as an amendment to some other major bill. If the house acts on other wage-hour amendments, he said, the textile limitation would be offered at that time.

Small cotton mills, George asserted, could not compete with "highly mechanized," larger mills if required to pay a minimum of 32.5 cents.

Seek To Hike Fulton Receipts

Commissioners Initiate Drive for Increase of $500,000 To Obviate Need of Boosting Tax Rate.

Fulton county commissioners yesterday initiated a vigorous drive to increase the county $500,000 receipts for this year and thus obviate the necessity of hiking the 1939 tax rate in excess of the 13 mills already tentatively agreed upon.

Delinquent taxpayers will bear the brunt of the new drive under the order of the board. Action of the commissioners was taken following reports of the county tax assessors and legal departments.

Standish Thompson, special counsel for the board of tax assessors, reported that from 1932-35 more than $14,000,000 of real estate and personal property, most of which was in the city of Atlanta, was not returned, and that state and county tax from 1929-31, amounting to $300,000, are now outstanding. The $14,000,000 would have brought in about $200,000, it was said.

Hughes Spalding, county attorney, prepared a resolution, which commissioners unanimously adopted, setting out "It appears inevitable that the tax rate must be raised in 1939," because of the increased demands for services and for relief. It also pointed out it is "unfair and illegal to raise the tax burden without getting at the tax defaulters."

Commissioners instructed all taxing authorities to co-operate in levying on all delinquent property, advertising and if need be selling it in the order in which such property became delinquent.

The board of assessors and investigators were ordered to file monthly reports of the progress made and were instructed to provide all clerical and other help needed by the tax collector in executing the instructions ordered by the board.

many gets about 2.48 reichsmarks for a dollar. An American visitor entitled to travel marks gets about 5.40 marks for a dollar, and naturally finds many things inexpensive.

Even Hotels Limited.

Big hotels seem to have plenty of food for the traveler—but a long stay at one of them shows that the choice is limited. At the annual dinner of the Egyptian Chamber of Commerce in Berlin a departmental director of the Reich's economics ministry examined the menu card with unusual interest and remarked to the person next to him:

"Well, they managed to put together a pretty good menu after all. You see, about three weeks ago the officers of the Egyptian chamber asked the hotel manager to submit three or four different suggestions for the menu."

"The manager laughed at them and said, 'Menus to choose from? You'll simply have to take what meats and vegetables we can get on that particular day; we can promise merely to do the best we can for you.'"

"I confess I did not know before that that even the large international hotels were being rationed."

Another aspect was cited by an American banker who lives permanently at the same hotel.

On Menu, Not Served. "I am getting thoroughly fed up," he said. "All sorts of things are on the printed menu, but when you ask for a particular thing, most likely you can't get it."

"We are now narrowing down to a few dishes and when one has them served to him week after week he gets thoroughly tired of them. I used to take most of my meals at the hotel. How I go out whenever possible to get some variety."

At Berlin public markets available vegetables consist almost entirely of spinach and potatoes. Even sauerkraut—for which a government propaganda campaign was conducted last winter—is sold out until late summer. Butter, lard and other fats are to be had only on a rationed basis—butter at the rate of 5.95 ounces per person per week.

Asparagus costs 36 to 40 cents a pound.

Coffee $1.70 a Pound. The scarcity of coffee has caused much complaint. Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels found it necessary to write an article ridiculing "coffee spinners" who grieve about coffee when, he said, they ought to marvel at the Nazis' accomplishments. Coffee is rationed on the basis of one-eighth of a pound per week per person and costs from $1.00 to $1.70 a pound.

The average customer is lucky if he comes home from a tour of the markets with as many as five eggs, which cost him four or five cents each. Bananas, comparatively plentiful, cost about five cents apiece.

Housewives don't even dream any more about the traditional delicacy, cakes with whipped cream. A broadcast announcement recently said that there will be no whipped cream this summer, because cream must be used for making butter.

HOSPITAL AIDE ROBBED. MARIETTA, Ga., May 30.—Miss Ethel G. Harper, new superintendent of Marietta hospital, was robbed of $11 the first day on her new job, she reported to Marietta police. Officers were questioning a negro.

RUSSIANS SILENT ON FIGHTING, PACT

embassies had received no reply to proposals presented last week, a clue to Russia's course was awaited from Vyacheslav Molotov, Premier-Foreign Commissar, who will address tomorrow the Supreme Soviet, Russian Parliament.

Molotov late last night asked Sir William Seeds, the British ambassador, for an elucidation of certain points in the revised Anglo-French proposals for a mutual aid pact with Russia.

They talked for about 40 minutes through an interpreter, but Molotov gave no indication of the Soviet attitude toward the proposals.

Exact Time Unknown. It was considered likely the commissar would foreshadow the Soviet reply in tomorrow's speech, although it was possible he would call the British and French representatives to the Kremlin to deliver a formal reply before he makes his speech.

Exactly when he would speak has not been announced, but it was expected he would address the Supreme Soviet at about 7:30 p. m. tomorrow (11:30 a. m. Atlanta time).

It was taken for granted he would discuss both the British-French proposals and the far eastern situation.

"No Cat's Paw." Those who think a British-French-Soviet treaty imminent predicted that Molotov would not bring Russian-Japanese rivalry into the delicate European negotiations.

It seemed certain he would follow the general line laid down by Joseph Stalin when he said March 10 that Russia would be "no cat's paw" for other European powers.

One development of possible defense significance was the opening of direct telephone connections between Moscow and the Soviet far east. Now the Kremlin can talk directly with Khabarovsk, the Red army headquarters—near the border of Manchoukuo 400 miles from Changkufeng.

the local communities or the state shall be treated as a unit for the purpose of raising tax money to carry on essential governmental functions."

Must Find Solution. Speaker Harris emphasized his belief that the present chaotic condition of the state government will become permanent unless a permanent solution is found.

At Athens, the Athens Banner-Herald said yesterday that a partially completed survey conducted by the state is "rapidly veering toward a come-back session of the legislature."

In the Banner-Herald's check-up on the situation, that newspaper announced every shade of political thought and action of the state is represented, including that ordinarily opposed to levying additional taxes.

"Public feeling," comments The Banner-Herald, "as shown by the press, seems to have completely reversed itself in recent weeks, favoring now adoption of some sort of tax to relieve the situation, whereas at the time the legislature adjourned when it was not so complacent, was outspokenly favorable to the legislature's failure to enact tax legislation. No effort has been made, however, to seek the cause for this apparent change in sentiment. But it undoubtedly exists."

Praises Subordinates. His district attorneys he called a "surprisingly good group." Good senators always recommend good men, Murphy commented, and the standards of the office are steadily improving.

One of the heartening things of the trip is the great regard the public has for Mr. Hoover," Murphy said, referring to his traveling companion. "It is very significant. People regard him as their protector against forces of lawlessness."

The man who has spread the fame of the Department of Justice's agents over the world, said quietly in the background, and remarked that all he had to say was that he had been having a grand time.

Murphy revealed that while this was his first visit to Atlanta, he had very pleasant memories of the late Clark Howell. Mr. Howell and members of his party were once guests in Manila while Murphy was Governor General.

Murphy and Hoover, and their two executive assistants, Matthew McGuire and Clyde Tolson, attended a dinner at which were representatives of state and local bar associations, of United States attorneys' offices in Atlanta, Savannah and Macon, Mayor Hartsfield, representatives of the three Atlanta dailies, and several prominent Atlantans.

talking and thinking third-term more than ever before."

"There has never been anyone like him (Roosevelt) in his great courage," Murphy added. "Most Americans, whether they agree with him or not, realize that there is a great leader fighting it out for the good of the country."

While here, he said, he intended "to ask a few questions" about the matter in Washington, he declared, but he was not very familiar with the background.

Passing on to the question of paroles he observed:

"The theory of parole is fundamentally correct, but its administration in some states is bad, and it is not being carried out properly. He advocated uniform parole laws for all 48 states, with parole and prison employees especially trained for their jobs, and with the jobs on a strict merit system."

Met by Camp. The party was met at the municipal airport by United States Attorney Lawrence S. Camp, who not so long ago returned from Washington and general conferences that Murphy had called; by Wayne Listerman, agent in charge of the Atlanta FBI office; by James V. Bennett, of Washington, head of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, and Warden Joseph W. Sanford, of the Atlanta penitentiary.

A good part of the field force of the FBI was on hand to help the Attorney General, and his baggage and traveling arrangements, and immediately escorted them to their apartments at the Biltmore, the same hotel which houses Major General George Van Horn Moseley, retired, and his family, by the Diet committee.

Murphy and Hoover with aides left Washington a week ago, and, traveling a thousand miles a day, checked over the wheels of justice to see what occasionally makes them go wrong, and, at all, they will leave for Washington this afternoon, after an inspection trip of the federal penitentiary, a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club, and talks with Camp and Listerman, Federal Judge E. Marshall Underwood was in town yesterday, presiding over a civil term of court.

Murphy, whose crusading zeal has put new life into the Department of Justice, said he thinks the federal prison system is not particularly in need of reform. He has been inspecting penal institutions with an eye to flaws in their management, and the correct remedy. He has even been checking the kitchens.

His district attorneys he called a "surprisingly good group." Good senators always recommend good men, Murphy commented, and the standards of the office are steadily improving.

Nation's No. 1 G-Man Pays Visit To Atlanta Police Headquarters

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Identification, last night thrilled officers and criminals at the city police station with an intensive visit of every department. He then halted in the lobby to say:

"I am delighted to see what Atlanta is doing. This city has, until a short while ago, one of the worst reputations in America in so far as a first-rate law enforcement department was concerned."

"Now, it is rated as one of the most progressive. Mayor William B. Hartsfield has done wonders with the co-operation of the chief and his staff."

"I am delighted to see what is being done with the war on gambling and slot machines. They corrupt every city they touch and they corrupt every city or state official who allows them to operate. They are most harmful to young people and are one of the most positive evils a city may have. They break down respect for law and government quicker than any other single factor."

Hoover, who made the "G-man" the hero of young America instead of the gangster, has developed a department which probably is the most respected one of all those supported by federal funds. The people generally have confidence in it.

Last night he thrilled the night force at the police station. He was brought by Mayor Hartsfield from a dinner at the Atlanta Athletic Club where District Attorney Lawrence Camp entertained the attorney general of the United States, Frank Murphy, and his accompanying staff. The mayor called the station from his automobile, which he has fitted with two-way police radio and introduced the head "G-man" to the radio board.

"I am delighted to meet you," said the nation's greatest threat to crime, "and the mayor asks me to say we are on the way to the station and will be there in five minutes."

Hoover greeted Lieutenant C. D. (Firro) Hardeman, a graduate of the bureau's school at Washington. "Looks like old times," he said. Firpo Hardeman swelled with pride as the chief of the "G Men" praised the very fine department of identification and the elaborate, cross-indexed file of known criminals. Also praised was the school-room.

Hoover was accompanied by Clyde A. Tolson, his valued first assistant. He, too, joined in praising what he said was one of the most improved police departments in America.

"I don't see how you do what you do with so few men. You do not have an adequate number of officers to police this city," said Hoover and Tolson.

They went everywhere, meeting the white and negro matrons in the women's ward; seeing the white wards, the gym, the baths, all there was to see.

They saw a prisoner being "mugged" and the prisoner, who was charged with a confidence game, began to perspire much more freely when he learned the identity of one of those watching the "mugging."

Praised, too, was Captain Jack Malcom's traffic department.

FOUR UNDER BOND ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Officers Report Raiding Underground Still Camouflaged With Brush.

Four men had been placed under $200 bond each yesterday by United States Commissioner David J. Meyerhardt, charged with illicit distilling.

The four, Buford and Winston Seay of Emma, Dawson county; James W. Conard, of Blairsville, and Robert V. Wall, of Gwinnett county, were arrested at one of the most elaborate underground distilleries discovered by officers in several months.

The still, officers reported, was buried in a hill in Wall's pasture with one entrance into the woods, and another entrance underground into the barn. Its roof was camouflaged with brush and grass.

At the time of the raid, officers found 3,000 gallons of mash ready to run, and 200 gallons of whisky. The still was fired with coke. Defendants testified that they were working for $2 a day for an unknown person.

Also held under bond for the grand jury yesterday were Leonard Rivers and Leonard Williamson, who were picked up at a still near the Yellow Dirt creek settlement in Heard county. Bond was set at $300 each.

The Story Behind Relief Investigations

Who Gets the Money?
How Is It Distributed?
These and Other Questions
Are Answered.

By BETTY MATHEIS.
What is this Fulton county relief system which has caused four investigations to be launched simultaneously?

What is its purpose and how does it work?
Answers to these questions and many others having to do with the administration of the Fulton county department of public welfare are the purpose of this article.

This is not an expose. Neither is it a succession of "horror" or "pathos" stories. Rather it is intended to give the background of the controversy which rages over one of the most important—and expensive—activities of the county government, and, consequently, is an issue vital to the taxpayers who must foot the bill.

$25,000 Each Month.
Direct relief, which means money grants, legally may be given only to unemployables. Checks are sent twice monthly, in the first and fifteenth, to this group. About $25,000 monthly is distributed in this manner. The average cash grant per person each month runs about $3 or less, or from six to ten dollars per case (family). In addition coal and certificates for food and clothing from the Federal Surplus Commodity Corporation warehouse are supplied.

"Unemployable" is defined in relation to the family, and no application may be approved when, in the opinion of a physician, there is a family member capable of working.

Medical Report Required.
There is no medical officer attached to the welfare board, but applicants must have a medical report before they are eligible for relief. Residents of the city are sent to Grady hospital or to the doctors at the city hall. Those living outside of the city may be examined by county doctors. Applicants may present statements from their own physicians as to disability, but often these reports are supplemented by reports of the public health officers.

Those recipients of relief who suffer from temporary illnesses or curable diseases must stay in order to remain on the welfare lists. As for fraudulent claims of address, something must be said in fairness to the welfare board. The case load is heavy—probably too heavy for constant surveillance. Each worker is responsible for several hundred families and frequent visits are, of course, impossible.

Move Often.
Irregularity, among this class of people, to pay rent involves moving to a different location every month or two and it is entirely possible that no forwarding address is left in order to dodge an irate ex-landlord.

However, the welfare worker would be the last to deny that in instances there are intentional discrepancies in address. Many of these people now on relief have lived too long by their wits to shed the habit easily.

Many of the mistakes have been laid to the clerical department of the agency as typographical errors.

In addition, too, too, must be said. There is the possibility that in a department so large (and not too well paid) there may be some lack of zeal for pursuing an investigation to its conclusion. The facts in many cases are complex and call for mature judgment as well as understanding and the ferreting out of the truth in some instances is a tedious and distasteful procedure.

Not Intentional.
If mistakes creep in, and it is evident that some unjustified claims are being paid, they may be attributed in the main to inability to make proper check-ups because of a limited staff, or to lack of enthusiasm, rather than to any intentional oversight.

The move for the medical examination which resulted in the present disclosures was begun in March, when the county commissioners requested an investigation to satisfy themselves as to the employability of relief recipients. At the same time the grand jury was making an investigation of every part of the county government including the Department of Public Welfare.

Non-Paid Board.
As for the agency which has been charged with extravagance and "excessive administrative costs," the setup is as follows: Relief, as well as other forms of public assistance, is administered by the Fulton county department of public welfare. A board of non-paid members appointed by the county commissioners and headed by W. E. Mitchell is responsible for all activities of the department.

Actual welfare work is carried on by a group of highly trained social workers under the direction of Dr. Willis Luck, appointee of the commissioners. Supervisors, stenographers, secretaries, clerks and bookkeepers.

All College Graduates.
All supervisors are college graduates, most of whom have had special training and considerable experience in the field. All visitors are college graduates and many have done graduate work. Clerical and stenographic positions are filled by high school graduates, as well as some have college training as well.

Changes in personnel are frequent, for the work is hard and nerve-racking. In 1938 there were 64 resignations and dismissals because of inefficiency or lack of physical and nervous resources to meet the constant heavy demands of the work, and because of the better paid jobs offered many of the best trained and most efficient workers by other agencies. New workers, unfamiliar with the procedure, make for inefficiency in an organization which cannot be run by strict rule but which must rely on personal opinion for its operation. Such a system is inherently inaccurate and expensive to manage.

Staff Reduced.
The staff, as of January 1, was 150, but a recent reduction of funds has necessitated a cut of the staff to 135.

Salaries are determined by experience and amount of special training. Top salary for case workers without special training is $95 per month. Supervisors may make as much as $200 monthly. The job of providing assistance to the needy is carried on by about 60 case workers who investigate need and attempt to rehabilitate the family when need has been determined.

Ghosts of Other Days.
Applications (from four to five thousand a month) are made at the departmental office, 160 Pryor street, S. W., a large, drafty old building, the doors of which still bear the names of a utility company's officials who moved out years ago.

Large waiting rooms, bare of furniture except for uncomfortable straight-backed chairs and rude benches, are filled all day with restless, ill-dressed men and women seeking help from the county or the state and federal governments.

All Are Interviewed.
All candidates for assistance are interviewed by one of the case workers in the intake division. Calls by the intake division are made in the homes of the applicants to establish need and to work out some plan for the family group. Emergency help is given pending a full investigation. No case may be studied more than two months. Each visitor or investigator in the division carries from 150 to 200 cases each month.

In addition, many requests come from all parts of the country concerning the needy who claim residence in Fulton county. All these must be taken up and should the claim prove legitimate (on the basis of inquiries to former neighbors, friends, relatives or former employers), the applicant is certified for return to the county. This is a reciprocal service which operates on a coast-to-coast scale.

4 RELIEF PROBES START IN FULTON

ed by other commissioners, asked the welfare department to strike from its lists the names of persons county physicians examined and found able to work.

George A. Campbell, foreman of the Fulton grand jury, asserted special sessions at a later date will be held to look into the report given to the county commissioners by the county doctors. The commissioners and the members of the county welfare board will be heard at one session on the subject of the annual relief levy, he added.

Huck Drafts Report.
Dr. Luck said that by today he hopes to have a full report on all the cases and that the report will be made public at a meeting of the board of welfare can be arranged.

He indicated that he will have "factual explanations" for all the discrepancies reported by the physicians and health department workers investigating the relief situation under Dr. Roy W. McGee, county health officer.

The courthouse and the welfare department buzzed with excitement and activity yesterday while the various investigations of the relief rolls were being conducted.

Recipients Worried.
Telephones of officials rang constantly as worried relief recipients called frantically to find if they were being put off the rolls.

Behind the hubbub, the four inquiries moved steadily and swiftly. LeCraw conferred with Huck for two hours after he issued a subpoena duces tecum for the welfare department records, which Huck told the grand jury he would produce at any time.

The assistant solicitor drew the subpoena for Dr. Luck and attached six typewritten pages of names which the health officers reported as discrepancies. Some names were included because the persons were found by the county doctors to be working or able to work; some because they were not known at the addresses where the welfare department listed them, others because the addresses were vacant lots, houses and stores.

Some of the names were those on checks which had been cashed after the person named thereon was reported dead, it was said.

Summonses Returned.
As additional summonses were sent out by the health department, the pile of those returned marked "not there," "gone to the county," "not known here" or "moved to parts unknown," increased.

All such are to be turned over to the grand jury, Dr. McGee said. "I do not like to try these cases in the newspapers, but our investigations reveal a laxity in supervision of the spending of the taxpayers' money for relief to the unemployed," Commissioner Hailey asserted.

"We are not attempting to evade our responsibility but we are going to see that the distribution of tax money for relief goes to the persons for whom it was intended," he said.

Eliminate Unworthy.
The commissioner explained, as did State Chairman Lucas, that the object of the inquiry is to eliminate unworthy recipients in order that the money can go to the really needy.

"One citizen on the welfare board are conscientious and useful," Hailey commented. "I am of the opinion that they have no knowledge of the situation that exists. I am satisfied they will co-operate with the county and will take such steps as are necessary to remove any person or persons who have been derelict in their duty of checking up on these cases."

Lucas Commends Hailey.
Lucas commended Hailey for his "constructive work" in bringing about the investigation of relief here.

"Somebody needed to do it," he said. "I think the county department needs a thorough purge. I am in favor of extending it to cover all relief cases in order that the needy who do not need it will be stricken off."

He added 20 to 30 per cent of the money the department gets goes for administration and not for relief.

George Kennedy, of the State Welfare Department, pointed out, however, that the state does not contribute to the support of the unemployables about which the controversy is raging. The state shares the expense of relief for persons over 65, for dependent children and the blind, but the county bears the expense of indigent persons unable to work.

Says All Investigated.
Dr. Luck said that every relief case comes to the welfare department is thoroughly investigated by trained workers.

"When a person appears to apply for relief, he is examined by physicians as to physical condition; trained workers question him; other trained workers check his statements and obtain a complete family history of the applicant from relatives, friends and neighbors; all before he is placed on the relief rolls," the director declared.

Hailey, at a county commission meeting, said that the county will follow the reports of its own physicians as to the physical condition of the relief recipients.

"I believe implicitly in their ability to determine whether or not these people are able to work," he said.

Features of Report.
The county doctors Monday reported that of 218 white persons on relief, they found 59 able to do regular work and 51 able to do light work. Of 303 negroes examined, 115 are able to work regularly, and 72 able to perform light duties.

In a letter Hailey wrote Monday to W. E. Mitchell, chairman of the county board, he listed what he said were cases where recipients had moved away, had died, or had married and did not need the money any longer. Mitchell could not be reached by phone yesterday morning and was reported to be out of town in the afternoon.

LeCraw said many men are needed to get to the bottom of the affair will be used by the solicitor's office in preparing evidence for the grand jury.

The county officers and the health workers are to report their findings to him.

18 ARE GRADUATED BY GEORGIA BAPTIST

Superintendent W. D. Barker Presents Diplomas to Nurses.

Eighteen graduates of the Georgia Baptist Hospital Nursing School received their diplomas at commencement exercises last night with Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, chairman of the hospital commission and pastor of the First Baptist church, presiding.

The cup given by Dr. Stephen T. Brown, president of the hospital staff, for the "best all-around student" was awarded to Miss Alice Futrelle, of Savannah. The presentation was made by Mrs. J. M. Wright, first vice president of the hospital auxiliary.

J. L. Fortney, superintendent of the Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home, at Hapeville, was the principal speaker. His topic was "The Matter of Living—a Plea and a Challenge." He urged the graduates to "maintain your personal ideals, the proper sequence of values and the democratic ideal."

Other speakers were Dr. Thomas T. Goodwin, of the hospital staff; Dr. J. C. Blalock, chairman of the nursing school committee, and Dr. Frank W. Wells, chairman of the curriculum committee.

Diplomas were awarded by W. D. Barker, hospital superintendent, pins by Miss Lucy Harris, superintendent of nurses, and Bibles by Dr. James W. Merritt, executive secretary of the Georgia Baptist Convention and secretary of the hospital commission.

NEAR-TRIUMPH SCORED BY HUNGARIAN NAZIS
BUDAPEST, May 30.—(AP)—Increased Nazi influence in Hungarian affairs, binding this country still closer to the Rome-Berlin axis, was forecast by political observers on the basis of complete parliamentary election returns published today.

Early figures were hailed as a government victory in the balloting on Sunday and Monday, but the final results appeared to be a near-triumph for Chancellor Hitler's admirers in Hungary.

The Nazi Arrow Cross party jumped its delegation from three to 28 members; minor Nazi parties elected 17 members, while 60 of the 185 elected under the government party's symbol have displayed strong Nazi leanings in the past. Opposition parties, of other Nazi leanings, got 22 seats. There are 260 seats.

STRICKEN PADEREWSKI SAILS FOR EUROPE
NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—Ignace Jan Paderewski, the great Polish pianist, sailed on the liner Normandie tonight, bound for Switzerland, ending what may have been his final American tour.

Wary and ill—he was stricken with a heart attack last week—he intended to rest at his villa on Lake Geneva.

The 78-year-old musician-statesman received hundreds of farewell notes expressing good wishes, and many bouquets arrived at his hotel suite.

DR. VANDER VEER
DIES AT HOSPITAL
Retired Physician Came Here From N. Y.

Dr. Francis E. VanderVeer, retired physician, died last night at a private hospital. He was associated for 35 years with the Equitable Life Insurance Company. He came to Atlanta from New York.

Surviving are his wife; a daughter, Miss Frances VanderVeer, and a sister, Miss Nevada VanderVeer. Funeral plans will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

persons for whom it was intended," he said.

Eliminate Unworthy.
The commissioner explained, as did State Chairman Lucas, that the object of the inquiry is to eliminate unworthy recipients in order that the money can go to the really needy.

"One citizen on the welfare board are conscientious and useful," Hailey commented. "I am of the opinion that they have no knowledge of the situation that exists. I am satisfied they will co-operate with the county and will take such steps as are necessary to remove any person or persons who have been derelict in their duty of checking up on these cases."

Lucas Commends Hailey.
Lucas commended Hailey for his "constructive work" in bringing about the investigation of relief here.

"Somebody needed to do it," he said. "I think the county department needs a thorough purge. I am in favor of extending it to cover all relief cases in order that the needy who do not need it will be stricken off."

He added 20 to 30 per cent of the money the department gets goes for administration and not for relief.

George Kennedy, of the State Welfare Department, pointed out, however, that the state does not contribute to the support of the unemployables about which the controversy is raging. The state shares the expense of relief for persons over 65, for dependent children and the blind, but the county bears the expense of indigent persons unable to work.

Says All Investigated.
Dr. Luck said that every relief case comes to the welfare department is thoroughly investigated by trained workers.

NEGRO DIES OF SHOT FROM OFFICER'S GUN
SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

CORDELE, Ga., May 30.—Maxwell Mills, negro, about 30, died late today of wounds received in a gun battle here last night with County Policeman Duffy Grimsley.

Grimsley and Deputy R. P. Bullington arrested Mills and were taking him to jail in an auto, when Grimsley said the negro seized his (Grimsley's) pistol and fired. The bullet grazed Grimsley's left leg.

The officer regained possession of the pistol after grappling with the negro, and the latter ran. Grimsley fired several times, and the negro fell, shot through the arm and abdomen.

Others go to children's homes whose upkeep is not financed by the county and where payment for these youngsters must be made from the budget of the county welfare department. The children's division furnishes two of its workers to the juvenile court to act as probation workers for negro children.

Care of single men in three shelters operated on the group plan, a life insurance adjustment service which keeps many families off relief, and various work projects sponsored jointly with the WPA round out the welfare program as carried on in Fulton county.

Some of the names were those on checks which had been cashed after the person named thereon was reported dead, it was said.

Summonses Returned.
As additional summonses were sent out by the health department, the pile of those returned marked "not there," "gone to the county," "not known here" or "moved to parts unknown," increased.

All such are to be turned over to the grand jury, Dr. McGee said. "I do not like to try these cases in the newspapers, but our investigations reveal a laxity in supervision of the spending of the taxpayers' money for relief to the unemployed," Commissioner Hailey asserted.

"We are not attempting to evade our responsibility but we are going to see that the distribution of tax money for relief goes to the persons for whom it was intended," he said.

Eliminate Unworthy.
The commissioner explained, as did State Chairman Lucas, that the object of the inquiry is to eliminate unworthy recipients in order that the money can go to the really needy.

HOME AND HOME CONTRACT GOOD FOR TWO YEARS

Golden Bears Play Here Dec. 30; 1940 Date Is Unsettled.

By The Associated Press.
 Professor A. H. Armstrong, faculty chairman of athletics, announced yesterday Georgia Tech and the University of California had signed a contract renewing the home-and-home football series for the next two years.

California will come to Atlanta to play Georgia Tech this year on December 30. The date of the second game, to be played in Berkeley, Cal., will be arranged later.

The contract has an automatic cancellation clause in the event either team is invited to play in the Rose Bowl.

Georgia Tech defeated California here in 1937 by a 13-to-7 count while last year the Pacific coast team turned the tables, 13-0.

Hoyt Low Medalist Over Coosa Course

ROME, Ga., May 30.—With the largest entry list in the history of the club, the annual city-wide golf tournament of the Coosa Country Club got under way here yesterday with a record-breaking list of 13 flights on the schedule, including 108 players.

Final qualifying rounds produced numerous high scores, with Wade Hoyt Jr., defending titleholder, being low medalist with a 70. He was closely followed by Albert Fahy Jr., who carded a 72. Under rules of the tourney, two matches must be completed weekly, at the convenience of the players. In addition to the match play, driving, approaching, putting and hole-in-one contests will be held on the afternoon of June 4, it was announced.

Baskin Visits Here, Loses Golf Match

Weems Baskin, University of Mississippi track coach and assistant to Harry Mehre in football, was a visitor in the city Tuesday.

Baskin played a round of golf with Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech backfield coach; Forrest Fowler and Collett Munger on the Capital City Club course during the afternoon.

Fowler and Dodd beat Baskin and Munger and Fowler had to sink a sizeable putt on the 18th to keep his side from being down as they turned. They played the back nine first, due to the Southeastern P. G. A. tournament in progress on the front nine at the time.

The income of England's four railways increased $740,000 in the first three months of this year.

PLAN TO END UNITY MOVEMENT LOSES

Presbyterians Vote Down Proposal of Judge Everett.

MONTREAL, N. C., May 30.—(AP)—The 79th general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States adjourned tonight after voting down a proposal that the movement for union with the northern church be discontinued. Shortly before the six-day session ended the assembly also condemned Fascism and Communism on the grounds that they denied the existence of God.

The general assembly left to its 88 constituent presbyteries the question of whether the permanent committee on co-operation and union should be abolished—as wished by the opponents of union—or should be kept for further study.

Although it submitted a report containing the general principles upon which it said the northern church would consider favorably a plan of reunion, the committee made no recommendation.

In asking that the movement for union be concluded, Judge W. M. Everett, of Atlanta, former moderator of the assembly's action in approving a denomination-wide evangelistic campaign for which $10,000 was authorized. Judge Everett said the proposed basis of the union would cause unrest and defeat the evangelistic crusade.

Others opposing the long-standing question of organic union included Dr. W. C. Robinson, of Decatur, Ga.; W. Calvin Wells, of Jackson, Miss.; and Tom Glasgow, of Charlotte, N. C.

MISSIONARY TO GET HONORARY DEGREE

College for Deaf Will Honor Rev. J. W. Michaels, 87, Visitor Here.

An 87-year-old Baptist missionary who has established a reputation throughout the south for his work among the deaf, stopped over in Atlanta yesterday on his way to Washington where he will receive an honorary degree from Gallaudet College, an institution for the deaf.

He is the Rev. J. W. Michaels, of Mountainburg, Ark., and is the oldest graduate of Gallaudet, which will confer on him the honorary degree of doctor of divinity at exercises Saturday.

Accompanied by his wife, the elderly missionary who has been deaf since he was 9 years of age, paused for a few hours yesterday at headquarters of the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist convention.

Michaels has been working among the deaf for more than 50 years, having established 120 Bible classes in the south. He has been a missionary for the Home Mission Board since 1905.

4 NEWSPAPERMEN WILL GET DEGREES

Law School Commencement Tonight.

James G. Stahlman, former president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association and publisher of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, will be among four newspapermen honored with degrees tonight at the 49th annual commencement of the Atlanta Law school.

Besides Stahlman, who began his career as a reporter in 1913, honorary law degrees will be conferred upon Kenneth Hogate, president of the Wall Street Journal; Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution; and John Paschall, managing editor of the Atlanta Journal.

In addition to receiving a degree, McGill will deliver the commencement address. The exercises will be held at 8:15 o'clock at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

F.D.R. URGES MORE RURAL ELBOW ROOM

President Discusses Wide Variety of Subjects at Hyde Park.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., May 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, tieless and in shirt sleeves, today advocated more elbow room for rural home builders and then ranged over a wide variety of subjects, including labor legislation, Postmaster General Farley's cross-country "sounding" trip, travel plans and the visit of British royalty.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had seen news dispatches that Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, announced he would be receptive to the presidential nomination on a pledge not to seek more than one term, but he was noncommittal beyond that observation.

He said Farley's reports on his swing through the country were very favorable. The President, amid his acres overlooking the Hudson, proposed for his home county an ordinance requiring rural home owners to build on tracts of at least two acres with a minimum frontage of 100 feet. He suggested that the rest of the nation might similarly expand its country dwellings.

He conceded that the plan—patterned after the government's resettlement program—was drastic but worth considering. Long experience in the west has shown, he said, that when a family has one acre or less, most of the land is occupied by the house, garage, driveway and lawn; but that with an additional acre there is space for a cow, pigs, fruit trees and a vegetable garden.

WILSON CONVENTION OF 1912 CAME OUT FOR ONE-TERM PRESIDENT.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, in linking his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination with a proposal for pre-pledging the party's 1940 nominee to one term, has borrowed a plank from the 1912 Democratic national platform adopted at the Baltimore convention.

Although the nominee of the Baltimore convention, Woodrow Wilson, served two terms, the Democrats of 1912 expressed themselves on the single term idea in the following plank:

"We favor a single presidential term, and to that end urge the adoption of an amendment to the constitution making the President of the United States ineligible to re-election, and we pledge the candidates of this convention to this principle."

Favorable Response.
 Well-meaning though the Vandenberg proposal may be, the initial favorable response it has met with in Republican circles carries the implications of the same political considerations which perhaps guided the earlier Democrats in projecting the identical idea.

At the time the Baltimore plank was adopted the Democrats had been out of control of the White House for 16 years and the proposition for limiting future presidents to a single term seemed to have a popular appeal.

Theory of One Term.
 The argument back of the single term idea is that a president committed or limited to one term would have greater freedom of action in applying himself to the manifold duties of government. He would be able to devote his entire time to the affairs of state without continually casting his eye to the political needs of re-election.

The Vandenberg one-term proposal is obviously designed to have a favorable effect on Democrats who may be considering leaving the party reservation in the event of a Roosevelt third-term candidacy.

Feminine Pulchritude Will Adorn Receiving Line at Tech Reception

By Sally Forth.

TOMORROW afternoon Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Brittain will be hosts at their annual reception in compliment to the members of Georgia Tech's graduating class, who total nearly 400. It has been their custom to entertain at the Brittain home on North avenue, but due to the increase in number of guests, the party will be held this year in the auditorium gymnasium, with the calling hours from 5:30 to 7:30 o'clock.

According to another custom, which amounts to something of a tradition, the officers of the senior class and the editors of the school publications will receive with the Tech president and Mrs. Brittain. And you should see the array of feminine pulchritude that will adorn that receiving line! You see, each man is given the privilege of inviting the girl of his choice to stand with him to receive the guests. "In fact, that is about the only way we would be able to keep them in line," explained Dr. Brittain.

President Tom Jones has invited Peggy Dutton to stand with him at the head of the line, and Franklin T. Waltermire, who won so many honors on class day, has chosen Carolyn Yundt as his feminine companion. Sarah Lewis will be Bill Alfriend's date, and Jack Chivington, of football fame, will squire Marie Cherry. Dillard Mumford's date will be Lily Shepherd Davis, and George Smith's will be Elsie Pelton. Flora Gatewood will come from her home in Americus to attend the party with Bob Anderson, and Sarah Smith will come from Breun College to be Homer Hutchinson's date. Louise Woodward will be escorted by Gray Thrash, and Emily Mobley by Dean Sprattlin. Mrs. Harvey Criswell will lend feminine support to her husband in the receiving line, and Doreen McMahon will stand with Thomas Hughes.

Now, do you not agree with Sally Forth that these Tech men have an eye for beauty?

FOLLOWING her graduation from Finch School on June 6, Alma Wilby, popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Wilby, will entrain for home, accompanied by her classmate, Fran Moore. The belles will arrive on June 8 with Mr. and Mrs. Wilby, who will attend the graduation exercises.

During Fran's visit here she and Alma will be honored at many informal parties, and on June 13 Alma's parents will be hosts at a barbecue at the Capital City Country Club. The affair, which will be held on the grassy terrace at the club, will assemble a number of Alma's friends, who are invited to meet her attractive visitor.

After a two-week visit, Fran and her hostess will leave for Galveston, Texas, to spend several weeks with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Moore. Following a round of parties in Galveston, the belles will leave for Seattle, Wash., to visit their classmate, Pat Jenkins. Pat, you remember, visited Alma during the spring holidays. Much entertainment is in store for the Finch graduates in Seattle, whose visit there will culminate with a trip with Pat's parents to the San Francisco Exposition.

house party, which will continue for several weeks, will be enclosed in the attractive Rolleston cottage, commanding an unbroken view of the ocean.

Swimming, fishing, bowling, golf and tennis will provide high lights in the boys' entertainment, as will frequent dates with popular belles vacationing at the Georgia playground.

Members of the house party will include Calhoun Witham, Walter McCord, Cosby Swanson, Clem Powers, known to "the brothers" as "Snowwhite"; Omar Elder, Baxter Jones, of Macon; Henley Sturgess, Alex Hitz and Clifford Stodgill.

A GROUP of Atlanta sub-debs leaves Thursday to spend a gay two weeks at St. Simons Island. These belles, who include Ann Pentecost, Lane Winship, Frances Beers, Marion Molse, Ann Burckhardt, Mary Amerine, Wight Rushton, Valeria McCullough, Caroline Robinson and Ann Dupre, will be accompanied by Mrs. B. O. Hughes and Nancy Keeler, who will chaperone the party. The girls have rented an attractive house on East Beach and Sally is informed that during their visit at the popular resort they will indulge in their favorite sports, including, swimming, bowling, fishing and bicycling.

Miss Erwin Heads Girls' Tallulah Falls School Circle

Miss Ethel Erwin was elected president of the Girls' Circle for the Tallulah Falls school at the annual meeting held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Gordon Burnett on Peachtree road. Mrs. Burnett's daughter, Mrs. Rufus Carswell, the former Miss Martha Burnett, is the retiring president of the circle. She presided at the meeting and announced that $1,000 had been raised during the past year.

Elected to serve with Miss Erwin for the coming year were Misses Ida Akers, Sarah Lewis, Nancy Keeler, Martha de Golan and Nancy Stair, vice presidents; Margaret Rogers, re-elected secretary, and Ann Pappenheimer, treasurer. Miss Yolande Gwin remains as honorary life president of the circle.

The slate of new officers was presented by members of the nominating committee including Misses Elizabeth L'Engle, chairman, and Christine Thiesen, Beverly Bailey and Mrs. Carswell.

Miss Erwin assumes her office as president well equipped with knowledge of the work of the Girls' Circle, having been a valued member for the past three years and having taken a leading part in the circle's activities. While at Washington Seminary she was a member of the Tallulah Circle there. While at the seminary, Miss Erwin was elected the most popular member of the graduating class, was president of the Phi Pi Club and secretary of Pirates' Club. She attended the University of Georgia and was historian of the Phi Mu sorority during her freshman year. She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Erwin and made her debut at a tea-dance given by her parents at the Piedmont Driving Club as a member of the 1937-1938 Debutante Club.

All other newly elected officers elected yesterday are capable workers in the Tallulah group and have been prominent figures in all the activities of the circle. Misses Akers and Pappenheimer are former presidents of Tallulah groups having served during their school days at the seminary and at North Fulton High school, respectively.

Retiring officers in addition to Mrs. Carswell were Misses Beverly Bailey, Christine Thiesen, Elizabeth L'Engle, Nancy Stair, Nancy Keeler and Margaret Rogers.

During the two-year regime of Mrs. Carswell, the circle has done outstanding work to benefit the Light in the Mountains, with $1,000 having been raised through various activities. Among outstanding undertakings was the sponsorship of The Atlanta Constitution last November 27, 1938; committee activities and the staging last Saturday of the fourth annual dance recital by the pupils of Miss Nancy Keeler, a vice president of the circle, and co-operation in various affairs of the Young Matrons' Circle for Tallulah.

Mrs. John K. Ottley, president of the board of trustees of the Tallulah Falls school, was a distinguished guest present and spoke of the work at the mountain institution. Other prominent visitors present were Mrs. James Frazer, the newly elected president of the Young Matrons' Circle; the three new vice presidents, Mesdames Charles King, William C. Warren Jr. and Crawford Barnett, Mrs. Charles T. Pottinger, the retiring president of the Young Matrons' Circle, was also present. Members were urged to remember the continued need for clothes for the children at the mountain and it was asked that all help at any time. New members of the circles were introduced and those present were reminded of the privilege of the nomination of new members with the proper endorsement. It was also announced

Mrs. Bertie Durden Elected Officer.

Among Atlantans honored at the state meeting held in Savannah recently was Mrs. Bertie Durden, of Georgia Rebekah Lodge No. 17, I. O. O. F., who was installed vice president of the Rebekah assembly of Georgia.

Others installed were: Mrs. Mettie Harrison, president, of Columbus, Ga.; Mrs. M. C. Strickland, of Atlanta, secretary; Mrs. J. E. Bodenhamer, of Decatur, treasurer; Miss Annie Laura Horton, of Columbus, marshal; Mrs. Kay, of Rome, chaplain; Mrs. Nell Hamilton, of Atlanta, inside guardian; Mrs. E. L. Davis, conductor; Mrs. Corley, of Griffin, outside guardian.

Mr. and Mrs. Draper Fete Betrothed Pair.

Miss Edith Harrison and her fiancé, James R. Henderson, were honored yesterday at the cocktail party at which Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Draper were hosts yesterday at their home on Cherokee road.

Flowers from the hosts' gardens were arranged throughout the home.

Guests included only members of the wedding party.

For Mrs. Farmer.

Mrs. H. E. Bird gave a miscellaneous shower at her home on Fernwood drive, Brookhaven, recently, honoring Mrs. Hollis Farmer, a recent bride.

Present were Mesdames S. P. Farmer Sr., S. P. Farmer Jr., E. M. Phillips, C. T. Singleton, L. J. Singleton, Misses Geneva Singleton, Frances Bell, Fara Morton, June Singleton and Mrs. Frank Penn, who assisted Mrs. Bird in entertaining.

ed that the college committee of the circle would meet in the early summer, while the regular fall meeting of the circle would be held in September.

After the meeting, Mrs. Burnett entertained at tea honoring the entire membership. The tea table was covered with a lace cloth and was centered with a crystal bowl filled with pastel-shaded summer garden flowers.

Mrs. J. C. Blalock Fetes Mrs. Noble.

Mrs. Martha Rogers Noble and her daughters, Misses Anne and Mary Noble, returned Monday from a week-end visit at "Thornhedge" on the Chattahoochee, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Moore, near Roswell.

Mrs. Noble, who recently returned from Europe with her daughters, continues to be honored at parties.

Mrs. J. C. Blalock was hostess yesterday at a luncheon at her home on Wesley road for Mrs. Noble.

The guests included Misses Irene Austin, Marjorie Lawrence, Mesdames Fred A. Hoyt, J. O. King, S. H. Smith, J. C. Crankshaw, Walter DuPre, Hal Dumas, J. O. Sanders, Victor Moore and Horace Powell.

Today Mrs. Noble will be honored at an informal luncheon at which C. V. Minor will be hostess at her home on Pine Valley road.

Mrs. Harold O. Rogers will be hostess tomorrow at a luncheon at the Capital City Club honoring Mrs. Noble. The affair will assemble a group of Mrs. Noble's friends.

G.S.C.W. Club Names Officers for Year.

Georgia State College for Women Alumnae Club of Atlanta met recently at the Atlanta Athletic Club. Hostesses were Mrs. M. L. Wise, Miss Maude Hilley, Mrs. Marie Anderson, Misses May Fountain, Grace McCurdy, Rylah Anderson, Mesdames J. O. Martin, R. A. McMurray, L. F. Kennedy, Rachael Shaw Stubbs, Margaret Coyne Taylor, Geraldine MacGuigan, A. L. Butts, Misses Viola Foy, Daisy Daniel, Jessie Allen and Julia Fillingim.

Mrs. M. L. Wise and Mrs. George Mathinson planned the artistic decorations.

Mrs. Marie Anderson, chairman of the nominating committee, installed the new officers, including Mrs. Geraldine MacGuigan, president; Mrs. Howard Pattillo, first vice president; Mrs. Sam Candler, second vice president; Mrs. Wesley Cook, third vice president; Miss Mary Givins, recording secretary; Miss Mary Lucy Hammett, corresponding secretary; Miss Julia Fillingim, treasurer, and Mrs. Eugenia McCord, parliamentarian.

Miss Julia Fillingim introduced participants on the program. Pupils of Mrs. Louise Southard presented several dances, and Miss Martha Ware sang, accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. Victor Clarke. Gracious tributes were paid Mrs. John Schley Thompson, the retiring president, by members of the club. In appreciation of the work she has done for the club, Miss Julia Fillingim presented the president with a silver waiter from the G. S. C. W. Alumnae Club of Atlanta. Seventy members were present.

Atkins Park Club.

Adair Park Garden club met recently with Mrs. F. P. Whitney on Mayland ave.

Callaway-Saunders Wedding Plans And Parties Are Announced Today

Miss Mary Will Callaway and her fiancé, Edward Miller Saunders, have chosen June 15 as the date for their marriage, the ceremony to be solemnized at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the Druid Hills Baptist church. Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the church, will read the marriage service, which will be witnessed by a throng of friends and relatives.

Forrest Perrin will present the musical program preceding the ceremony, and Joseph B. Callaway will give his daughter in marriage. The bride-elect has chosen her sister, Miss Martha Callaway, as her maid of honor. Another sister, Miss Charlotte Callaway, and Mrs. A. E. Gilhouse will be bridesmaids.

Graham Greene will act as best man and the list of groomsmen and ushers includes J. B. Callaway Jr., brother of the bride-elect; Woodrow Fuller, Parks Hall and Hugh McClain.

Miss Alice Daughtrey will give a dinner this evening at the Frances Virginia tearoom for the betrothed couple. Saturday, Miss Marie Sherman will entertain at a luncheon at the Tavern for the bride-elect, and that evening Miss Callaway will share honors with Mr. Saunders at a theater party given by Miss Eden Newton. This affair will be preceded by a dinner party to be held in the hostess' gardens on Oakdale road.

Miss Evelyn Green is planning a party for the betrothed couple at her home on Oakdale road on June 8, and on June 10 Miss Margaret Sprattlin will honor the bride-elect at a luncheon at her home on Barnett street. That same evening, Mrs. A. E. Gilhouse will honor the couple at a bridge party at her home on Sterling street, and they will share honors on June 12 at Miss Elizabeth Stucky's bridge party at her home on Los Angeles street.

On June 13, Mrs. J. B. Callaway will honor her daughter at a tressau tea at her home on Williams Mill road. On June 14, Miss Mayo Altman plans to honor the bride-elect at her home on Clifton road at a luncheon.

That evening, Mr. and Mrs. John Inman Bell, parents of the bridegroom-elect, will entertain the couple, their wedding personnel and the out-of-town guests at a rehearsal party. The buffet supper will be held at their home on North Druid Hills road.

Select Graduation Gifts for Their Individuality and Suitability

Whether you're going to the fair or staying home, you can delight your friends and establish a reputation for cleverness by making a Trylon and Perisphere dessert. These miniatures of the famous buildings which symbolize the New York Fair are made of ice cream and cake.

Try Ice Cream and Cake In Modernized Version

By SALLY SAVER

Bring the "World of Tomorrow" into your kitchen today! Show your friends you're up-to-date by serving a Trylon and Perisphere dessert. They will think you a most clever hostess.

Actually it is an old favorite, ice cream and cake, in a modernized version, and it should prove to you, if proof be needed there is such a thing as style in cooking and serving, and that you can find expression for your artistic impulses right over your kitchen table.

The miniatures of the famous buildings which symbolize the New York Fair are easy to make. Almond ice cream is suggested but any other flavor which is light-colored could be substituted for almond. Ice cream is so easy to make with the new freezing mixes on the market today. I suggest that you make your ice cream with a freezing mix. Follow directions on the can or package, and freeze. If you do not have an ice cream scoop, the balls can be shaped with the fingers.

To make the Trylon, choose close-textured cake such as a round cake. Cut into three-sided pyramids about five-inches tall, having bases of equal width, and frost. To frost easily, lay trylons on waxed paper and frost two sides in this position. When dry, turn and frost the third side.

Almond ice cream is tasty served with apricot sauce.

Apricot Sauce.

1-4 lb. dried apricots (3-4 cup)

2 cups water

1-2 cup sugar

3 tablespoons lemon juice

1-4 cup light corn syrup

Pinch of salt

Wash apricots. Put in saucepan with the water, cover and simmer about one hour. When very tender rub through sieve with water in which they were cooked. There should be about 1-3 cups puree and juice. Add remaining ingredients, bring to boil and boil five minutes, stirring constantly. Makes about two cups sauce.

If you would like to have a good recipe for frosting, phone or write Sally Saver, in care of The Constitution, W.A. 6565.

Fancy Names for Coups and End Plays

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Our good friend and chess-playing card analyst, George Coffin, who plays quite a lot of tournament bridge up around the Boston Chess Club, has a well-known and pesky weakness for inventing fancy-sounding names to describe various types of coups and end plays.

Perhaps you have played bridge for years without knowing whether a gambit is first cousin to a coup, squeeze or finesse, or whether there is such a bridge term as "gambit" at all.

"BEWARE THE GREEKS."

We will let Brother George explain it in his own way.

"In every game, a gambit is an immediate sacrifice for future gain.

"In chess or bridge it is usually giving up a piece or a trick to gain time or position."

A NIFTY COUP.

He offers the following hand illustrating a nifty coup, which he would like to have the bridge players of the world refer to henceforth as George Coffin's King coup. You will enjoy the play, even though you forget the Coffin non de plume.

Selfish Child Requires Firm Treatment

By Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

We have a young daughter of 12 who is terribly selfish, particularly with me. My husband and I have worked hard to give her the best we can possibly afford but she is never satisfied. An incident happened last week which has made us very unhappy. There was a school dance for which she demanded a new evening dress and there wasn't any money to buy it with. She made a scene before some of our friends which mortified us to tears and ended by refusing to go to the dance. She has sulked for a week and is now on strike to get the dress for a commencement occasion. This incident will show you what a problem we have and how much we need advice.

A DISTRESSED MOTHER.

Answer: My good women, you should be firm and let your young rebel learn right now that life isn't made to her order, that kicking and screaming and biting the hands that feed her get her nothing but barked skins, red eyes, a swollen nose and final disappointment.

When parents haven't the grit to through with a problem that includes depriving children of what they cannot afford to give, disciplining them when they are disobedient and defiant, teaching them that doing without and giving up are on the calendar of everybody's days, then those parents must take the consequences of their own weakness.

They have reared a brood of selfish youngsters who raise Cain at home, quarrel with their friends away from home, make themselves miserable and everybody else that comes near them.

And does it take grit. There's nothing more distasteful to a mother than saying no to a child about something she has been more than to see her darling deprived of something the mother yearns to give her. It is not made easier either by the youngsters who don't realize that punishment and privation are more painful to the parent than to the victim. But this is life.

If there's any doubt in your mind as to the wisdom of a firm policy with a selfish, headstrong miss, just look around you at other young people who have been indulged by their parents, never deprived of anything they wanted, not taught to expect and accept disappointment. You will find your answer.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Miss Miss Chatfield:

My steady is 28 years old—ready to get married and doesn't want to wait. I'm 18 and think I'm too young for marriage. Considering these facts don't you think the 10 years difference in ages is too much? I'll thank you for an opinion.

FLORENCE.

Answer: If you are conscious of the difference in your ages,

there's the plain indication that the difference is too great. If you are so cool toward the steady that you hold back from marrying him on any ground,

there's the plain indication that you don't love him much. You are welcome.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Paradox: Would you see discontented personified? Search the face of a young person who has had everything he has wished since birth handed to him.

My Day: Freedom Minus Chance To Work Is Valueless

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—I told you yesterday that I would go on with some of the things I could not forget about the miners in Scotts Run, W. Va., so here goes.

One of them is the little girls' club meeting in the community house at Pursglove. Not a very elaborate community house, but it has one good-sized room and a place which will some day be a kitchen and pantry if they ever get enough money to buy dishes and equipment. I asked those little girls what they were working for and with one voice they said: "Some way to get to camp this summer." Camp costs $3.58 a week for every child. They can't pay that, of course, and the welfare agency probably isn't going to be able to provide much this year. But, to those little girls, camp means three weeks of adequate food, and real opportunity for enjoyment, and they are going to do their level best to find some way to work for it.

Scotts Run is typical, of course, of many other communities, not only mining areas, but in mill areas and farm areas where they have had droughts and floods, in any area in which the industry by which the people have lived, has petered out for one reason or another, and has left behind a people with no means of support.

Two things make democracy valuable, freedom and the opportunity to make a living; but freedom without that opportunity is rather valueless. So it seems to me that every one of us who cares about democracy should examine our own communities and make sure that there are no conditions there which are giving democracy a bad name. Perhaps you think you can do nothing about it. If enough people, however, get together something can be done in almost every community and you, as a citizen, are responsible in doing your share to make your community, as part of a democratic nation, a place worth living in.

We will soon be celebrating Decoration Day. On that day we honor the sacrifices made by innumerable people in wars fought, first to free our nation, then to keep it united and free. Today we realize that the necessity of fighting a war is not upon us, but if we have any understanding of our times we know that day by day our government and each one of us is on the firing line in a new age, facing new problems, new conditions which have not confronted us in the past, and which we, therefore, do not know just how to meet.

I can imagine how helpless some of the early settlers were when some new disease attacked the human beings or the animals which they had brought with them. Over and over again, a family lost several children, perhaps the man of the family or the mother, and sometimes all the cattle. It took years of painstaking research, of living through bad conditions without knowing the answers, before many of these pioneering difficulties were finally solved. Our economic ills in the machine age are difficult and yet similar. When I remember my little girls, I know we, too, will find the solutions.

If You Were Fat, Would You Enjoy Discussing Weight?

By Ida Jean Kain.

Add to the list of things it is not safe to ask a lady: "How much do you weigh?"

In the process of making up the new structure-weight chart, I fell into the bad habit of classifying practically everybody according to one of three general types—slight, medium, or large frame—to see how closely their weights tallied.

And, purely as a matter of mental routine, I asked an acquaintance with a large frame to tell me how tall she was and how much she weighed. Well . . .

You'd think I'd asked how old she was or could I borrow $10?

A very queer look came over her face and for a minute there was a chilly silence. Finally, in a tone which accused me of meddling with personal matters, she replied: "I don't know how tall I am. And I haven't weighed lately."

Of course, I hastened to assure her that with her large structure she wouldn't look well too thin (that being what I always say when I get myself in a spot) and that put us on a friendlier footing.

She was wistfully confessing that her weight was a touchy subject and that, really, she would like very much to weigh 20 pounds less.

Now, seriously, the woman with the large frame does not look well too thin, but when she is above normal, she appears unusually large, and knows it. Like my acquaintance, she would be a great deal happier for a little less weight. And, with just a bit of calorie management and an exercise plan, most of the large women can really have lovely figures.

If you are over 5 feet 7 inches and have a large frame, you can reduce on 1,600 calories a day. Nobody could call that a diet! On that number of calories, you can have almost anything you like. There are only about four important restrictions for this type reducer: Avoid the rich, high-calorie desserts; never eat the fat part of the meat; use salt sparingly; limit water with the meals.

You do not need vigorous calisthenics but you should exercise to firm the backs of the upper arms, strengthen the muscles supporting the bust and strengthen the abdominal muscles. Exercises with the arms held at shoulder level will help you to get rid of the flabby flesh on the backs of the upper arms and also will strengthen the pectoral muscles. For this type, there is no better exercise than rowing. If you cannot row a boat, try to get an inexpensive rowing machine.

The structure-weight chart, is all finished now and you can send for it any time now. Maybe it's just as well that it is finished. Asking how much people weigh does not win friends!

Following the presentations the members and their escorts were entertained at a vaudeville show given by the marionettes of the Atlanta League. In addition to the review which was a part of the year's marionette performance, skits written especially for the occasion by Mrs. Rutherford Ellis delighted the audience. New puppets designed and dressed by League members cleverly caricatured prominent movie stars and League members.

Supper was served in the club ballroom from a beautifully appointed table centered with an effective arrangement of yellow calla lilies and canna leaves. Radiating from the centerpiece to the four corners of the table were ribbons of fruit in shades of yellow including pineapples, bananas and lemons combined with gold-flecked aucuba leaves. Individual tables held pots of yellow pansies. After supper dancing was enjoyed.

Preceding the evening's entertainment a business meeting was held at 6 o'clock. Reports of the national conference were given by the delegates, Mrs. Colquitt Carter Jr. and Mrs. Malon Courts. Mrs. Joseph Cooper, the president, announced the gift of $250 to Eggleston hospital, which is to be used for air-conditioning a portion of the ward maintained at the hospital by the Junior League. Mrs. Cooper read letters from W. R. Prescott, chairman of the board of trustees of the hospital, and Miss Jesse Candlish, superintendent, thanking the League for its generosity.

SWEET FOR A SEASON

Stirling Offers to Perform Marriage Ceremony for Glada and Gern

By JOSEPH McCORD.

FINAL INSTALLMENT.

"Oh, yes. Told him you turned me down nicely. I thought I knew why, then."

"It seems to me you have some quaint ideas about managing a love affair. Perhaps not. I've not had much experience."

"Neither have I, if that's a dig. Your dad is tops. I'm worried about the rest of your family. I've a hunch that your mother doesn't think too well of me. And a rose by the name of Scud Jones probably won't smell any sweeter."

"Mama may prove a little difficult, just at first."

"Disappointed because you didn't take the preacher?"

"Perhaps." A shadow crossed Glada's face. She had very nearly forgotten Mr. Stirling in the experience, the amazing revelation of this hour. "I still think we'd better go and see daddy first," she decided slowly.

"Do you feel up to it, dear? I'm afraid you've had a rather strenuous morning, even if you do look very well and very beautiful."

"Oh, yes."

"Okay. Will you trust yourself in the car of your future husbandman, if he promises to drive soberly? Bill can take your car home! Or would you feel safer with him?" as he saw her hesitate. "I won't feel hurt. For that matter, I could leave my car here for the present."

"It isn't that, Gern. But would you mind if I went on ahead, alone? There's something . . . I have to do." She tried to keep her voice steady, but her lip quivered in spite of her.

"Sure darling. Anything you like. Always."

"You're sweet, Gern. I'll meet you at daddy's office about twelve. He doesn't go to lunch until half past."

"You may find me sitting at the bottom of the steps nursing a black eye."

"I don't believe so. You can stay here awhile and practice the story on Irma if you like. Will you call Bill down to the gate?"

Glada never forgot that ride back to Dale City, fighting down the dread of what was to come. But she had to do it; it was the only fair thing and the longer it was put off, the more difficult it would be. Her newly found happiness would have no real sweetness until this final obligation was discharged.

This time, she did not care who saw her going into Mr. Stirling's house. She sent up a little prayer that he might be at home. He was. But she had very nearly missed him. He came to the door, carrying his hat in his hand.

"Well!" he exclaimed in pleased surprise. "This is an unexpected treat. Come in."

"Thank you. May I speak to you just a moment, Mr. Stirling?"

"Of course. Walk into the sanctum. You know," he added with a laugh, "this is proof that dawdling is a virtue. If I had not been loitering here aimlessly for the past quarter of an hour, I would have missed this."

Something he saw in Glada's face, as he placed a chair for her, caused him to step over and close the door quietly before taking his own seat at the desk.

"It surely is a pleasure to see you out and around like this, Glada. Are you beginning to feel quite like yourself again?"

"I . . . I think so. Mr. Stirling, I came on an errand this morning."

Unconsciously she used the same words she had when she sat in this room that other time. The day she brought the thousand dollars. That had seemed a dreadful ordeal, but this was so much more difficult. It came to her now that Mr. Stirling always had a way somehow of knowing what was in her mind, of helping her. But he wouldn't guess, this time. And he wasn't trying to help. He just sat there looking at her.

"You have been kind to me, Mr. Stirling . . . in so many ways," was her blundering start. "I have felt that I ought to be able to do anything in the world I could to repay you . . ."

"Glada! What . . . ?"

"No, no! Please let me tell you. I want to be fair and honest because you have been."

Her words were tumbling out impetuously. "I had to come this morning and tell you that I never can . . . can do what you want me to! I wish I could . . ."

"Stop, Glada my dear! Please! I understand what you want to tell me. You are being very fine and honest, but I won't let you punish yourself like this."

"But you don't know that . . ."

"But I do, my dear. And I won't take credit for having had any revelation. I thought I knew. Then, this morning, I chanced to see a Young Lochinvar speeding by with a yellow courser. That verified my first conclusion. Am I right?"

He finished with a crooked little smile that caught at Glada's heart. "Yes," she answered in a low voice. "I didn't know . . . until this morning. Please believe me."

"Why, of course I believe you. Hearts are unaccountable things. They must have their way. Not so long ago, you were good enough to tell me that you trusted my sincerity. I am glad about that, for I want to wish you happiness."

Sudden tears sprang to Glada's eyes, but she winked them away resolutely.

"You are good," she said simply. "Oh, no," Stirling smiled. "I merely try to be. It is part of the job. May I ask if Mr. Jones will be in Dale City for a time? I hope I may have an opportunity to offer my congratulations. I consider him quite an unusual young man. Perhaps you do, too."

"Oh, yes, I do," Glada colored in confusion. "I guess he must . . . after what happened this morning."

Stirling's amused laugh served to clear the atmosphere. He asked a familiar question: "Still good friends, aren't we?"

"Oh, yes! Of course we are!"

"Then it's all right."

"I must be going," Glada announced hurriedly.

At the door, Stirling paused with his hand on the knob.

"Glada," he said musingly, "I hate to be wrong about things. That is, if I can help it. I believe, in one of my overconfident moods, I ventured to tell you that some day I was going to marry you. I did, didn't I?"

"Yes. Yes you did." Her gray eyes widened.

"Then, when the time comes, I hope you will let me. Officiate, I mean." The blue eyes were smiling.

"Why, yes! Yes! If I have anything to say about it."

"No, I haven't been upstairs," Gern told Glada when Bill helped her from the car at the bank. "As a matter of fact, I gossiped with Cobb and Irma longer than I intended. Just got here a minute ago."

"Fraidy cat! All right. I'll protect you."

Katie Anderson looked up with a smile from her typewriter as the two entered the front office, her gaze lingering on Gern with unabashed curiosity. Glada led the way into her father's office, motioning to her escort to close the door.

"Well, here we are, Counselor."

"None of that," Ed. "I'm your dad and an innocent bystander, after this. Hello, Scud Jones. How are you?"

"Particularly fine, I'd say, Mr. Lee."

"I'll tell you why he says that, Daddy." Glada helped herself to a seat on the arm of Ed's chair. "It's because I proposed to him this morning. Please be nice about it. He's accepted me."

Ed Lee's response was to lean back far enough to look steadily into his daughter's eyes. Something he saw in their gray depths seemed to satisfy him.

"Okay, Longfellow," he said with a little catch in his voice. "I can take it if you can."

Glada gave him a little hug with the arm that rested across his stout shoulders.

"What's mama going to say?" she questioned doubtfully.

"Well . . . Ed squirmed uneasily. "I thought I was through with all this undercover stuff. But I got to figuring about what was going to happen at the farm. So I made an excuse to go home and sort of hinted it to mama . . . just in case, you know. I didn't think it was quite fair not to prepare her."

"Oh, you didn't, Daddy! That's marvelous! Was she . . . was she . . ."

"Yes, she was. But that Scudger Algernon stuff seemed to soothe her quite a bit. Said something about ice cream for lunch . . . just in case."

THE END.

"MY LOVE IS WAITING"

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

"The story of a girl who set out to meet the 'right people,' but who nearly ended up with the wrong man."

Dorian Lane was fascinated by one man and liked another—When Bart proposed she thought her happiness was complete, and Miles faded out of the picture. But Dorian's faith in Bart began to waver, and then came a series of exciting incidents to help her find her true love.

VOTER SENTIMENT IS EVENLY DIVIDED ON F.D.R. AND TAFT

Many Democrats Would Switch Parties Because They Oppose 3d Term, Gallup Survey Finds.

(Copyright, 1939, by American Institute of Public Opinion.)
NEW YORK, May 30.—If Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio were the Republican candidate for president against Franklin D. Roosevelt running for a third term, voting sentiment at this time would be evenly divided between the two candidates, according to tests made throughout the country by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

GALLUP POLL

In a "trial heat" between the two men, the Institute asked a cross-section of voters of both parties:

"If President Roosevelt runs for a third term in 1940 on the Democratic ticket against Senator Robert Taft on the Republican ticket, which one would you prefer?"

Among those expressing an opinion, the vote was:

Roosevelt 50%
Taft 50%

Approximately one person in every six (16 per cent) said he had no opinion.

The even division of sentiment between Roosevelt and Taft is brought about mainly because a large bloc of voters who were for Roosevelt in 1936 say they would switch parties to vote for Taft. Their chief reason, judging by the comments they make, appears to be opposition to a third term. The party division follows:

Favor Favor
Roosevelt Taft

1936 Roosevelt Voters 75% 25%

1936 Landon Voters 6 94

In explaining their reasons for favoring Taft, the largest group of voters say they are against a third term.

SQUALUS SALVAGE STRATEGY REVISED

240 Feet Too Deep, So Effort Will Be Made To Move Sub Toward Shore.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 30. (AP)—Slow-paced 21-gun salutes—the navy's rarest diapason—sounded today above the deep sea "grave" of the 26 who died aboard the submarine squalus. Flowers floated from a wheeling airplane to the cold Atlantic shroud.

Thus, "in memoriam," the navy paused momentarily today in the delicate task of shifting the Squalus to a shallower, warmer berth near shore—a new plan forced upon the 1,000-man salvage crew by the freezing temperatures and terrific pressures encountered at the present 240-foot depth.

Divers worked to attach an air hose to the water-free control room of the Squalus in order that compressed air might be pumped into the dry compartments of the craft to prevent her hull and bulkheads from buckling beneath the tremendous pressure of the ocean water, and to make her bow more buoyant. The 40-fathoms pressure is enough to crush a log of wood.

KING URGES CANADA TO BE MEDIATOR

Calls on Nation To Become Interpreter Between East and West.

VICTORIA, B. C., May 30.—(AP) King George VI today called on Canada to become a mediating force between the east and the west, widening her role of interpretation for the benefit of mankind.

To the vast unsettled Arctic, he waved his hand, and said in effect, "Go north, young man."

Speaking at the official luncheon given by the provincial government of British Columbia, the British sovereign discussed Canada's future in the realm of world affairs, giving emphasis to the thought held by British and Canadian statesmen that the North American dominion is destined to become the interpreter, go-between, or mediator, between the old world and the United States, and in a larger sense, between the east and the west.

POPE SENDS SNITE SPECIAL BLESSING

Youth Bewildered by Prayers Said for Him.

LOURDES, France, May 30.—(AP)—Fred B. Snite Jr., who made a 5,000-mile pilgrimage in an iron lung to the shrine of the Virgin of Lourdes, received a special blessing from Pope Pius XII by telegram today.

The Holy Father's telegram was sent by Luigi Cardinal Maglione, papal secretary of state, through the Very Rev. Frederick C. Dietz, of Oberlin, Ohio, who is staying with Snite at Lourdes.

The Chicago youth, in a telegram replying to the Pope's message, declared he was "simply bewildered" by prayers being said for him all over the world.

West Enders To Seek Legal Means To Prevent Egan Homes Project

Special Committee Selected To Take Action as 1,000 Residents of Section Discuss Proposal; 3,800 Names on Petition Against Plan.

A special committee was authorized last night to seek legal means for preventing erection of John Egan Homes in the West End section. This action was taken as more than 1,000 West End residents crowded into Joel Chandler Harris school auditorium to discuss the proposed projects.

The citizens also began circulating petitions urging the housing authority abandon its plans for the projects in the West End vicinity. Officials said approximately 3,800 names had been placed on the petition before the meeting last night. John Hudson, attorney, was named legal counsel for the special committee.

Palmer Addresses Group.
C. F. Palmer, chairman of the Atlanta Housing Authority, appeared before the citizens and explained the housing authority had unanimously adopted a resolution yesterday afternoon in which it was decided to go forward with its plans for the projects.

Palmer said the plans call for two entirely separate projects—one fronting on West View drive in which only selected white tenants would be housed and the other fronting on Hunter street for selected negro tenants. The two would be separated by a wide area, Palmer said, the Fair street-car line would be extended past Ashby street to care for the negroes, and Lawton street would be closed. In addition, he said 10 acres of land would be used for a park for the white children.

700 Favor Project.
Fred Ernest, of 1136 West View drive, told the group 700 residents in the immediate vicinity of the proposed project had signed petitions favoring it. He expressed the opinion the area would grow steadily worse unless the projects materialized.

Roger Prestwood, chairman of the committee which has been protesting the projects, reported on the committee's progress, saying Senator George, Senator Russell and Congressman Ramspeck had been contacted. He also declared Mayor Hartsfield had promised the West End citizens they did not have to have the projects, unless they wanted them.

J. W. Robinson, who presided at the meeting, brought a round of applause when he reminded the West End residents that city councilmen were now elected from the city at large.

Can Say It by Vote.
"If we don't get some help from city council now, we can say something in the next election," he declared. He said he had been informed that the housing authority was supreme in its jurisdiction and that local representatives had no power to act.

Other citizens declared they had only begun to fight and asserted flatly they would not have the projects.

Hudson declared he had never seen a political job that could not be abolished nor a housing authority that couldn't be recalled.

Orderly Action Urged.
Roy Callaway, former alderman, who recently resigned, appealed for orderly, concentrated action in fighting the projects and warned against "mob psychology."

Speaking of the paper creating the housing authority, Callaway said he was the only one in council to fight it and asserted "Bill Hartsfield has sacrificed his birthright by appointing an authority over which council has no control."

On the special committee to investigate the legal aspects of the project are Prestwood, Mrs. Grady Andrews, Mrs. J. C. Banks, Mrs. A. G. Wright, J. W. Robinson, J. T. Alexander and H. R. Stanfield.

NAZIS TO WELCOME TROOPS FROM SPAIN

Ignored Two Years, German Volunteers Hailed by Newspapers.

BERLIN, May 30.—(AP)—German volunteers in the Spanish civil war, whose activities virtually were ignored at home for more than two years, were hailed by newspapers today as "examples for every German soldier" and bearers of "the great German army tradition."

Six thousand returning German fighters are to reach Hamburg from Vigo, Spain, tomorrow, and to be given a heroes' welcome by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

The Berlin newspaper Lokalanzeiger said today that German passenger airplanes were used from the very beginning of the Spanish conflict July 18, 1936, to transport troops from Spanish Morocco to the mainland.

VISIT OF ROYALTY TO FORCE GARNER ON SOCIAL SPREE

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—Vice President John Nance Garner is in for the biggest social spree of his anti-party career when the British King and Queen visit here next week.

He's fled capital society for years, but his vice presidential rank is moving him to the front in all the gold-plate, rose-garden and stiff-shirt functions planned for the visiting monarchs.

Lady Lindsay, wife of the British ambassador, indicated today Vice President and Mrs. Garner probably would be the first persons formally presented to their majesties at the royal garden party June 8.

And that's only part of the social merry-go-round set for that day for the Texan whom Mrs. Roosevelt has to coax to White House parties. He and Mrs. Garner head the reception committee asked to help the Roosevelts receive their majesties at the station. There's a White House dinner that night and an embassy dinner the next.

Friends here are chuckling over the vice president's predicament, and his alleged attempts to wriggle out of the social hubbub.

CZECH FLAG FLIES ON MEMORIAL DAY

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—The white, red and blue flag of Czechoslovakia flew over the legation today, just as it did every Memorial Day before Hitler's troops entered Prague.

Vladimir Hruban, Czechoslovak minister, has refused to recognize the legality of Hitler's coup, and has declined to turn the legation over to the Reich's representatives.

GOVERNMENT RESTS IN TRIAL OF MANTON

Last Witness Says He Paid $67,000 for Favorable Decision.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(AP)—The government completed presentation of testimony today at the conspiracy-bribery trial of former Federal Judge Martin T. Manton and George M. Spector.

Manton is accused of accepting money to influence his judicial opinions as a member of the United States circuit court of appeals.

Federal Judge W. Calvin Chesnut denied defense motion for dismissal or a directed verdict of acquittal, and adjourned court until tomorrow morning.

The last government witness, Almon B. Hall, Wallingford (Conn.) poultryman, completed testimony that he had paid $67,000 for a favorable decision in an incubator patent infringement suit appeal.

He said he had been faced with a loss of $1,500,000 in the decision by the district court.

ALEXANDER GUMBERG DIES.
NORFOLK, Conn., May 30. (AP)—Alexander Gumberg, prominent member of the executive staff of the Atlas Corporation, one of the largest Wall Street investment companies, died at the Norwalk hospital of coronary thrombosis tonight.

ARE YOUR FALSE TEETH false friends?

- 1 DOES THEIR STAINED LOOK SHOUT "FALSE"?
- 2 DO THEY GIVE YOU "DENTURE BREATH"?
- 3 ARE GUMS SORE DUE TO UNCLEAN PLATES?

NOT IF YOU USE POLIDENT

Of course you clean your plate or bridge. You may even soak it in a mouth wash. But still your denture may be only half-clean. And unless it is truly clean and purified it can mean real trouble!

For "denture breath"—probably the most offensive of all breath odors—is caused by half-clean plates. And their tell-tale stains can actually shout "false". Often they result in sore gums—and even in serious infection.

But even worst stains, food deposits, tarnish and odors are dissolved away with Polident. No acid or danger. No brushing. Your plate looks better and feels better. Denture breath is prevented—and your mouth feels fresher and sweeter. Dentists everywhere recommend Polident to all who wear plates or removable bridges. Millions use it daily. Sold at all drugstores—3 oz. can 30¢—7 oz. can 60¢. And your money back if not delighted.

WORKS LIKE MAGIC
Do this daily:—Add a little Polident powder to ½ glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes—Rinse—and it's ready to use!
